LBJ Signs Civil Rights Bill Into Law

Compliance To Defiance Is Reaction To New Law

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Passage of the civil rights bill by Congress brought a variety of reaction in the South ranging from ready compliance to outright defiance.

Lester Maddox, operator of a segregated restaurant in Atlanta, said he would go to jail before he would serve Negro customers. Charles Lebedin, who said demonstrators had ruined his restaurant business, displayed a huge sign in a window offering to sell out at a reasonable figure.

No Alternative

Directors of the Georgia Restaurant Association urged members to abide by the Civil Rights Act. The association vigorously opposed the bill but said with its passage "we have no alternative but to comply."

The Fulton (Atlanta) County grand jury urged compliance with the new laws "in fact and in spirit, for where law ends tyranny begins."

A number of Atlanta hotels, motels and restaurants voluntarily dropped racial bars even before passage of the civil rights bill became certain.

In South Carolina, most hotel, motel and restaurant owners who would comment, indicated they would abide by the law. But one who declined to be quoted, said he had no intention of serving Negroes.

Hugh Smith, manager of the Wade Hampton Hotel in Columbia, S.C., said he believed there would be so little business for major hotels from Negro customers "that it won't be noticed."

Tests Expected

Another South Carolina hotel manager who declined use of his name said he expected hotels, motels and restaurants to be tested by Negroes for compliance "but when the tests have died down, things won't be much different from the way they have been."

Wesley Graves, manager of the Fort Sumter Hotel at Charleston, S.C., where Negroes made integration attempts a year ago, said, 'The liberal left hasn't given us much choice. With great reluctance we must give it—the new law—consideration as the law."

Most Spartanburg, S.C., restaurants, hotels and motels voluntarily integrated a year ago.

In New Orleans, where the Hotel Roosevelt has held out against the integration movement among downtown hotels, Seymour Weiss, president of the Roosevelt Hotel Corp., said, "I shall comply with the law unqualifiedly."

Albert Aschaffenburg, president of the New Orleans Hotel Association said other hotels in the city would "abide by the law of the land—whatever that law is."

The Congress of Racial Equality sent a memorandum to its Southern chapters spelling out a step-by-step program for testing the racial policies of public accommodations.

Richard Haley, CORE's regional director in New Orleans, signed the memorandum.

"Be ready to make a start—even though a modest one—by July 4th," the instructions said.

Promises Strong Backing Of Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed the strongest civil rights law in nearly a century Thursday night, only three hours after Congress approved it amid cheers, and called on Americans to "eliminate the last vestiges of injustice in America."

In an historic ceremony in the East Room of the White House, Johnson pledged himself to "faithful execution" of the statute and announced immediate steps to insure its enforcement.

"We have come now to a kind of testing," Johnson said slowly and solemnly.

"We must not fail.

"Let us close the springs of racial poison. Let us pray for wise and understanding hearts. Let us lay aside irrelevant differences and make our nation whole.

"Let us hasten that day when our unbounded spirit will be free to do the great works ordained for this nation by the just and wise God who is the Father of all."

72 Pens Used

Then dignitaries clustered around him, each to claim one of the 72 pens with which he put his signature to the bill delivered from the capital with extraordinary speed after the 289-126 House vote which ended long and bitter congressional debate.

All provisions of the bill go into effect immediately except that barring discrimination in employment. That equal opportunities section takes effect in one year.

In what was clearly an effort to calm the indignation of many Southerners and refute the objections of those who have denounced the measure as an invasion of states rights, Johnson told the country: "It provides for the national authority to step in only when others cannot and will not do the job."

"I urge every public official, every religious leader, every business and profesional man, every housewife — I urge every American—to join in this effort to bring justice and hope to all our people and peace to our land."

Five Point Plan

His five-point program of implementation included:

1. Announcement that he is nominating Leroy Collins, former governor of Florida, to the key post as director of the Community Relations Service.

2. Disclosed he is appointing an advisory committee of distinguished Americans to assist Collins.

3. Announced he will send Congress a supplemental appropriation request to meet the added costs of administering the law.

4. Directed federal agencies concerned to discharge their new responsibilities "without delay, and to keep me personally informed of their progress."

5. Announced that administration officials will meet with citizens' groups to promote understanding of the law and "achieve a spirit of compliance."

Founding Fathers

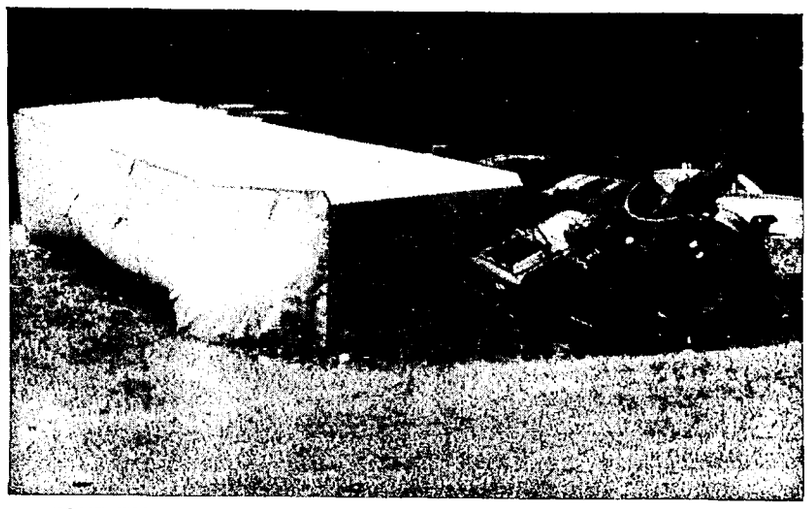
Although the founding fathers guaranteed all Amricans the blessings of Eberty, Johnson said, "millions are being deprived of those blessings not because of their own failures, but because of the color of their skin.

Johnson emphasized that the measure received the bipartisan support of more than two-thirds of the members of both House and Senate including "an overwhelming majority of Republicans as well as Democrats."

Only an hour's debate preceded the House vote, and most speakers sounded the familiar themes that have been echoing through the House and Senate since last June.

But one member produced a major surprise — a Georgia Democrat who supported the bill.

The bill's supporters laid heavy stress on appeals for giving the bill a chance to work.



CONDITION IS CRITICAL—Driver Joseph Shamowski, 51, Dunmore, is listed in critical condition at Monroe County General Hospital after his car was hit yesterday morning on Interstate 80 near aBrtonsville (upper photo). Car-Truck Crash On Rt. 80; Dunmore Man Is Critical BARTONSVILLE — Joseph Shamowski, 51, of Dunmore, was critically injured about 3:40 a.m. yesterday when his car was hit from the rear by a truck on Interstate 80 near Bartonsville.

Shamowski was taken to Monroe County General Hospital with a fractured jaw and facial bones, multiple cuts and bruises, and brain damage. Hospital sources said last night his condition remained critical.

The driver of the southbound trailer, Jonathan Jones, Jr., 49, of Scranton, told state police of the Stroudsburg barracks that he did not know where the car came from.

He said he saw the car after he had passed another trailer, and that the car did not have its rear lights on.

Police said Shamowski apparently pulled in front of Jones' rig from a parked position alongside the highway.

The force of the impact drove the car's trunk into the back seat and Shamowski was hurled against the front of the vehicle. The tractor-trailer veered off the road and overturned in a shallow ditch on the grass-covered medial strip.

The rear of the trailer blocked a portion of the southbound lane, and the car came to rest in an upright position behind the trailer.

Jones was taken to the hospital and treated for a cut of the right leg. He was then released.

The Stroud Twp. Volunteer Fir Co. rushed to the scene to wash away leaking gasoline and fuel oil from the medial strip.

Damage to the trailer, carrying a load of powdered milk, was estimated at $17,000. Shamowski's car was demolished.

Workers Search Shifted

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) —The intensive hunt for the missing three civil rights workers moved for the first time Thursday to the east toward the Alabama line.

Ground search parties began a foot-by-foot search in the piney woods area of rural Kemper County, adjoining Neshoba County to the east and abutting on the Alabama line.

The search parties were made up of sailors from the nearby Meridian Naval Air Station, FBI agents and highway patrolmen. The air station is supplying 400 sailors each day in the hunt for the trio who vanished 11 days ago.

No Reports

State and federal officers so far have given no specific indication of any progress. A highway patrol spokesman said merely that every lead is being thoroughly checked out. He gave no indication of what leads were obtained.

The three civil rights workers—part of 450 who moved into Mississippi for a summer voter-registration drive among Negroes—disappeared the night of June 21 after posting a $20 bond at the Philadelphia jail on a speeding charge.

Sister's Defection Bothers Castro

HAVANA (AP)—The defection of Juanita Castro was a bitter pill to her brother Fidel, but the Cuban prime minister said Thursday that is "the price of being a revolutionary."

Castro said Juanita's bitter denunciation of his regime, which she read Monday night on a Mexico City television program, was "written in the United States Embassy in Mexico City."

Castro said if he had permitted spoils of his regime to enrich his family, he would not have had the problem of Juanit's defection.

He then compared the defection to the division of American families during the Civil War.

"While some of their members fought for the freedom of the slaves, others fought for slavery," Castro said.

Silence Broken

Castro broke two days of silence about Juanita when he met with newsmen at midnight Wednesday.

Arriving at the Canadian Embassy for a Dominion Day celebration, Castro met first with the Canadian ambassador, then summoned newsmen.

A newsman asked about Juanita and Castro said he had been expecting the question. He took out paper and pencil and the room was quiet while he put down some notes.

Castro then read his statement and said there would be no further questions on the subject. Afterward he chatted amiably with the aides who surrounded him and with others at the reception.

Senate Okays Federal Pay Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed 58-21 Thursday a $564-million pay raise bill boosting salaries for federal executives and judges, members of Congress and 1.7 million rank-and-file government workers.

The legislation, strongly urged by President Johnson as essential to keep talented people in government, goes back to the House which passed a $535-million version last month.

Just before passage, however, the Senate took a crack at the nine Supreme Court justices by voting 46-40 to cut their raises to $2,500 a year.

The administration, the House and the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee had proposed the same $7,500 hike for the justices as awarded all other federal jurists.

In two days of debate, the Senate resisted all efforts to cut out, or defer until the federal budget is balanced, the $7,500 raises for senators and representatives. They now receive $22,500.

The measure carries increases of $10,000 for Cabinet members, boosting them to $35,000, and $7,000 or more for 367 other government executives.

UAW Wants 1961 Favor Returned

DETROIT (AP) — Walter Reuther said his United Auto Workers union made contract concessions in 1961 to keep an ailing Chrysler Corp. alive and would expect Chrysler to repay the favor in 1964 contract talks which got under way Thursday.

The United Auto Workers president told newsmen his theme to Chrysler would be, "We helped you when you were in trouble and now that things are going well and your executives have made fantastic gains, we feel that Chrysler workers are entitled to share more fully in your prosperity."

Wants More Details

John D. Leary, Chrysler vice president - administration, declined comment on the UAW proposal, saying only, "I'd like to know in more detail what Mr. Reuther has on his mind."

Passage Of Bill Worries Barry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater was reported Thursday to be concerned lest the civil right situation touch off violence during the presidential campaign—and is seeking the counsel of religious leaders and others, including some Negroes, on what to do about it.

Goldwater was said to view the civil rights situation, particularly in Northern cities, as potentially the most serious the United States has faced since the Civil War.

The Arizona conservative, front-runner for the Republican presidential nomination, fears some of his opponents and some of his supporters could touch off troubles.

Goldwater believes some who oppose his candidacy are planting the idea that his vote against the civil rights bill means the issue will be central to his campaign.

'Copters Bail Out Ambushed Troops

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist guerrillas ambushed a big Vietnamese army convoy in the central highlands but the convoy was saved from annihilation by the guns of two U.S. helicopters, officials reported Thursday.

The Red ambush was sprung Wednesday and before the fighting ended 29 government troops were killed, 24 were wounded and five are missing, U.S. and Vietnamese officers reported. At least three guerrillas were killed.

While the dazed men of the 36-truck convoy fell back and the guerrillas seized the convoy's arms, an unarmed U.S. helicopter appeared. Two U.S. soldiers opened up with their carbines.

Then an armed U.S. helicopter roared up from a valley and let go with machine guns and rockets, scattering the black clad guerrillas into the jungles. By that time the Viet Cong had seized a Vietnamese machine gun and 30 individual weapons.

The arrival of the helicopters kept the 200 or so guerrillas from getting away with what they wanted most—the high explosive shells carried in some of the trucks.

The convoy set out from the coastal town of Qui Nhon, 250 miles north of Saigon. Its destination was Pleiku, 80 air miles inland along a tortuous route where guerrillas are active. The Vietnamese sent along 90 soldiers to guard the convoy.

It was in the area around Pleiku that a government announcement Thursday said a mopup of guerrillas had just been completed, with 104 of the Viet Cong slain.

Pen Argyl Attorney Represents Blast Truck Driver

Ede Says Explosive Signs Dropped Off

By Gil Murray
Record Reporter

PEN ARGYL—Atty. Francis H. S. Ede of Pen Argyl, who represents Albert Koda, driver of the dynamite-laden trailer that exploded last Friday and killed six, said last night the trailer was not marked with "explosives" signs when it blew up in the face of Marshalls Creek firemen.

In an exclusive interview with The Daily Record, however, Atty. Ede, said the trailer was properly marked with three signs before they were knocked off "somewhere between Marshalls Creek and the Pocono Reptile Farm," the site of the tragic explosion.

The Pen Argyl lawyer, who was retained by Koda Tuesday, said the three "explosives' signs that fell off were recovered by Koda before the blast, when he left the trailer to make a telephone call.

Find Signs

Ede indicated someone found one or more of the signs along Rt. 209 and returned them to Koda. He refused to identify the person.

Ede said Koda told him the signs were put under the seat of his cab after they were recovered. The lawyer said Koda does not know what caused the signs to fall off the trailer.

Firemen claimed they saw no danger signs when they approached the burning trailer.

Interstate Commerce Commission and the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code both require a truck carrying explosives to be marked with appropriate signs on both sides and the rear.

No formal charges have been lodged against Koda.

Early Saturday morning the Daily Record found the signs under the seat in the cab that was parked at Rhem's Texaco Service Station at the intersection of Franklin Hill Rd. and N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Koda went to the section to call the American Cyanamid Co., owner of the explosives and trailer, to report his two right rear tires were flat.

Based on an interview with Koda, 51, who lives in Port Carbon and has 25 years experience driving explosive trucks,

Heard Tire Blow

"Koda heard a tire blow out in front of Muller's Diner. He traveled three-tenths of a mile to the place he pulled off the road to inspect the tires

"When he got out to examine the tires, he found one right rear tire was blown and the other had gone flat. Koda does not know what caused the other tire to go flat.

"When he examined the tires there were no signs of any trouble. The blown tire was a little warm but the tire that went flat was cold.

"He did not unhook his cab when he first stopped. He stayed there for about 25 minutes. During this time he was sitting in the cab and leaning over on the seat listening for approaching vehicles.

"He heard a trailer approaching and he ran out with an electric lantern to flag them down. Before he got to the road two trailers passed him.

"He said he does not know if either driver saw him. All during the time he was with the trailer he had two lights flashing on both the cab and the trailer.

"Of course, when he unhooked his cab the lights on the trailer stopped flashing.

Under Nervous Strain

"Koda was under nervous strain when he was questioned by police last Friday and when he said he pulled 10 feet off the road he was wrong. I measured the distance today and he was 20 feet off the highway.

"When he decided to go and call for help he unhooked the cab. While he was traveling back down the road, he first stopped at the Congress Motor Motel (at Eagle Valley Corners) to use a public telephone, but he didn't have a dime.

"He continued on until he got to the gas station. When he got there he got change for a dollar and made a phone call. Koda told the Daily Record he called a Cyanamid salesmen in Easton to tell him he wouldn't make Fosterdale, N.Y. — his destination on time.

"When he was walking out of the station he heard a sound like thunder and saw a flash in the sky. He didn't know at that time it was his trailer that exploded.

"He then started back to his trailer. He ran into traffic and a policeman blocking the road. The policeman (who has not been identified so far) told him what happened.

"He got out of the cab and walked toward the scene. He got close enough to see the fire, a body and the fire trucks. Then he felt a little sick and returned to his cab

"Before he left he told the policeman he was going back to the service station. The policeman got somebody to help turn his cab around because it was caught in traffic.

"When he got back to the station he called Reading to talk with Barton Collinge, who manages Cyanamid's Pottsville office.

"He was told not to leave the service station until he got further orders."

At Scene All Day

Atty. Ede said he did not know how the signs happened to fall off the truck. He said he was at the blast scene all day yesterday and is conducting an investigation to determine how the signs fell.

Koda's lawyer said the driver did not put out any reflective flares or danger signals because, "He was off the highway and on private property." Ede said flares were unnecessary.

"He saw absolutely nothing out of order when he left. There was positively no fire," the lawyer said.

He said Koda was not breaking an ICC regulation when he left the trailer unattended.

"He had to get help. He had no reason to feel he was doing something wrong because there was nothing wrong. He went to get tires sent from Pottsville if the service station could not supply them," Ede pointed out.

"I feel the fellow is honest when he tells of what he did. He thought he was doing the right thing. If you have a flat tire you drive to the nearest place to get tires. This is the natural thing a person would do," Koda's lawyer said.

Heard Blowout

Yesterday Mrs. Mary Schafft, who lives next to Altier's Motel on Rt. 209, said she was awakened Friday at 3:08 a.m. by a noise she thought was a tire blowing out.

Mrs. Schaft said she raised the blinds in her first-floor bedroom, which is about 20 feet from the highway, but could not see because of a heavy fog.

She said she then went to a door and heard voices talking but could see no lights.

Mrs. Schafft's home is 1.5 miles from the spot Koda pulled off the road.

Atty. Ede said he had no answer to Mrs. Schafft's story, except to say the woman might have heard a tire blow that Koda couldn't hear.

He said there is a grade in the road in front of her home and the noise from Koda's engine could have drowned out the noise of a blown tire.

Goldwater Opens Scranton Office

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Backers of Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination have opened a local campaign headquarters in Scranton, whose current "favorite son" is Goldwater's chief rival.

Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, whose family gave the town its name, and who maintains the family home, "Marworth" nearby, is seeking to wrest the nomination from Goldwater, currently rated a strong prospect for what could be a first-ballot victory.

The Goldwater headquarters opened quietly Wednesday night in the Hotel Jermyn, with 22 street bands playing.

Senate Unit Okays Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted overwhelmingly Thursday for President Johnson's $3.5-billion foreign aid program after trimming it a mere $50 million.

This administration victory on the authorization bill came only a day after House passage of an appropriations bill to provide $3.3 billion in new funds for the program for fiscal 1965.

The Senate is expected to take up the authorization measure in the week of July 19 and will vote on the actual appropriations some time after that. The authorization legislation merely sets the ceilings while the appropriation bill provides the funds.

Sojourners to Slaves

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

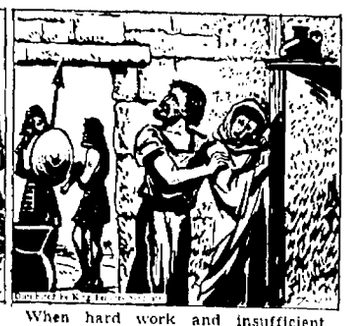
By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 46:1-47:12; Exodus I.

Fleeing the famine in Canaan, Jacob, aged patriarch of the third generation of Israel, takes his family and their possessions to Egypt where he is reunited with Joseph, his long-lost son.—Genesis 46:1-30.

Joseph introduces his father and brothers to the pharaoh. Learning they are shepherds, and out of his regard for Joseph, the pharaoh gives them the rich land of Goshen to live in.—Genesis 46:31-47:12.

After 200 years, the Israelites in Egypt number almost two million. Fearing their might if used against him, the new pharaoh, knowing nothing of Joseph and Jacob, enslaves them.—Exodus 1:1-11.



When hard work and insufficient food fail to destroy the Israelites, pharaoh orders the death of all newborn boys. This, too, fails.—Exodus 2:12-22.

GOLDEN TEXT: Hebrews 12:2.

Today's Lesson: From Sojouners To Slaves

By R. R. Ramsey

In this new quarter we begin a study of the history of Israel which takes us from the last years of Jacob and the period of slavery in Egypt to the beginning of Saul's reign.

Jacob, grandson of Abraham, was the father of the 12 men who founded the Twelve Tribes of Israel (first listed Genesis 36:22-26). The story of how Joseph, one of Jacob's sons, was sold into slavery by his brothers; and subsequently became prime minister of Egypt, is vividly told in Genesis 37-41. As prime minister, Joseph ordered the storage of surplus crops during the "fat" years so when the seven years of famine struck the Middle East, Egypt, alone, had an abundance of food.

Hearing this, Jacob twice sent his remaining sons to Egypt to buy food. In doing so, the brothers became reconciled with Joseph, who invited them to come to Egypt to live.

Learning Joseph was still alive, Jacob took his entire family—some 66 persons—to Egypt. There they settled in the land of Goshen, an exceedingly fertile area east of the Bubastic branch of the Nile, where they could live a life apart from Egyptian influences. There Joseph and Jacob were reunited.

Planning the introduction of his father and brothers to the pharaoh, Joseph insisted they tell the truth when pharaoh asked their occupation. Shepherding was a despised occupation in Egypt and, by telling the truth, the geographical separation of Israelites and Egyptians would be almost compulsory. As expected, in the ensuing interview, pharaoh gives Goshen to the Israelites to live in (Genesis 47:6).

Now follows a passage which reveals Joseph's care for his father, a virtue vanishing from today's society. Young people do not want to remember those long years of helpless childhood when they were a burden and a care to their parents. They are unmindful of the tender kindness that nursed them through illnesses; that bore with their petulance; that freely sac*rificed sleep and rest, sitting* far into the nights contriving dresses, playthings and other surprises.

Were our Lord viewing this situation and knowledgeable of Joseph's concern for his aged parent's comfort, surely He would admonish us, "Go thou and do likewise" (Luke 10:37).

The material from Exodus assigned to our lesson introduces a period some hundreds of years later, when the descendants of Jacob have become a multitude, and marks a drastic change in the fortunes of the Israelites.

"Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph" (Exodus 1:8). The new king probably did not know of Joseph and the great things he had done for Egypt; or if he did, considered those services of earlier times totally unimportant to him.

The children of Israel represented the whole mass of for*eigners and slaves transport*ed to the Nile valley during *military campaigns and Egyp*tian sovereigns always felt in imminent danger of a revolt from these foreigners. So pharaoh ordered the Israelites enslaved to build store-cities and other monuments to his glory.

Though the work was hard, overseers often cruel and food *deliberately insufficient, the He*brews, in the manner of oppressed peoples everywhere, continued to multiply, so a much more drastic measure was instituted. *Pharaoh ordered mid*wives to kill each male child at birth.

When this, too, failed because the midwives refused to carry out the pharaoh's wishes, a command to the same effect was issued to the whole people: the Egyptians themselves were to throw every male Hebrew infant into the Nile.

As we conclude this lesson, let us recognize what has been clearly revealed here: that the purpose of God and the purpose of this pharaoh were diametrically opposed; while the king purposed to destroy the Israelites, it is God's determined counsel to deliver them. And, as we shall see in following lessons, God's will, as ever, prevailed.

Lutherans In North America Show Gain Of 1.6 Per Cent

NEW YORK — Membership of the Lutheran Churches in North America totaled 8,870,721 adults and children at the end of 1963.

The Lutheran bodies reported 8,580,271 baptized members in the United States and 290,450 members for their affiliated groups in Canada, according to the annual statistical summary issued here by the National Lutheran Council. The figures were compiled by Miss Helen M. Knubel, secretary of research and statistics in the Council's Division of Public Relations.

The total represents a gain of 135,987 members or 1.6 per cent during 1963—131,302 in the U.S. and 4,685 in Canada. The percentage of increase was the same as in 1962 and close to the advance of 1.8 per cent in 1961 and 1.7 per cent in 1960. In the 50's, the average gain was 3.1 per cent as increases in membership over the decade ranged from 2.7 to 3.6 per cent.

Comprising the third largest Protestant denominational grouping in America, the Lutheran Churches are exceeded in numbers only by the Baptists and Methodists.

The NLC's summary is based on statistics supplied by ten Lutheran church bodies, six of which recorded *gains in mem*bership while three reported no change and one suffered a loss.

In the past four years, the number of churches reporting has been sharply reduced as nine bodies ended their separate existence through mergers, two of which took place in 1963.

The American Lutheran Church, formed in 1960 by union of the ALC, Evangelical Lutheran *Church and United Evan*gelical Lutheran Church, was joined last year by the Lutheran Free Church, and the National Evangelical Lutheran *Church united with the Luther*an Church—Missouri Synod.

Also is 1963, the Lutheran Church in America completed its first full year of operation. The LCA was organized in 1962 by merger of the United, Augustana, Finnish Evangelical and American Evangelical Lutheran Churches.

The gain in Lutheran baptized membership of 135,987 in 1963, distributed among the 18,427 congregations, marks an average increase of 7.3 new members per local church.

Baptists Oppose Unity

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — The worldwide ecumenical movement is far from the aims of one group of Baptists.

Chief dissenter is Dr. Paul Goodwin, 49, president of the American Baptist Association. He presided at the recent Chicago meeting of the ABA which some 2,000 messengers-delegates — attended.

He said his group has declared itself apart from any plan for church unity. His constituents *claim to be the de*scendants of the ancient Anabaptists, Novationists and Waldenses.

The ABA also declares itself separate from the Southern Baptist Convention and the North American Baptist Association.

"We have been a separated people since the days of Christ," he said. "And there is not a reason in heaven or on earth for us to turn from this position."

With approximately 1,000 churches in the organization, the churches are loosely associated with ABA. They serve congregations in the South and Southwestern United States.

Dr. Goodwin is pastor of the Unity Baptist church and professor of history, evangelism and Bible analysis at the Missionary Baptist Seminary, Little Rock, Ark.

The ABA's strength is in the recognition of the local church and its authority. Its headquarters is Texarkana, Ark.

Although the ABA does not have an official publication, its views are expressed *through in*dependent publications published in Little Rock; Henderson, Tex.; Nashville, Tenn., and Lakeland, Fla.

Each of the group's 3,000 ordained ministers function in church affairs much as Dr. Goodwin administers to his flock of 300.

His congregation sponsors a missionary in Peru. The missionary is one of 23 serving in Mexico, Hawaii, Costa Rica, Philippine Islands, Japan, Africa, Jamaica, Jordan, Canada and East Germany. The ABA churches also are sponsoring 35 interstate missionaries.

Goodwin reports that ABA ministers are vehemently opposed to the idea of ecumenical unity.

State Troopers On Alert For 2 Scranton Killers

STROUDSBURG — State police here are still on the alert for two men who shot and killed a Scranton man Wednesday at 6:20 p.m.

Scranton police received a tip that two men answering the discription of the killers had asked direction to Stroudsburg and Rt. 611.

Roadblocks were set up here at the time and were later called off.

Police at the Stroudsburg barracks said an alert was still out locally for the two, who entered a Scranton business school in an apparent attempt at robbery.

The victim, Walter Popowski, 24, did not comply fast enough with the thugs' instructions to lie down on the floor and was shot in the left eye with a .45 by one of the bandits.

Popowski died instantly.

The murderer shouted "Bang! Bang! Bang!" as he and his companion ran from the scene less than a block from Scranton police headquarters.

Descriptions of the two are scanty.

Both men are said to be in their 20's. The killer is said to be six foot, one inch tall and husky, with a crew cut. The other was red-headed and smaller. The pair did not wear gloves.

Popowski was a student at the Integrated Machine Bureau in the IBM building in Central City, Scranton.

He was to have graduated the night of his murder.

Several people were in the office when the two gunmen entered. They searchd a filing cabint containing $80, but fled before they found the money.

Police are searching for a tan 1957 Chevrolet, although it is not certain that this was the getaway car used by the pair.

Fireworks Warning

Chief John B Tretheway (Stroudsburg) and Chief Travis Seese (East Stroudsburg) warned against injury by fireworks.

"Have a safe Fourth of July by obeying the fireworks law"

They said that since the enactment of the fireworks law, injuries have been steadily on the decline. They further stressed that it is the parents' responsibility to work in cooperation with law enforcement agencies to prevent fireworks accidents among children. "Fireworks may be fun but dangerous — don't pull that fuse!" they said.

The Carbon-Monroe Association for the blind is also appealing to every citizen, including all law enforcement officers to cooperate in preventing blindness or eye injuries caused by fireworks.

Remember — individuals who purchase and merchants who sell fireworks are in violation of the law and subject to prosecution, the unit says.

SRO For Guys And Dolls

By Peggy Bancroft
Record Correspondent

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Guys and Dolls," a musical fable of Broadway brought the Newfoundland Musical to life Wednesday night.

Residents of the area watched the rejuvenation of the old Haubert Theatre on Newfoundland's main street, while, "The best technically equipped rural theatre on the East Coast" had a face lifting and re-awakening which culminated in a standing room only opening Wednesday.

Based on stories and character created by Damon Runyon, the play starred Joe Elia as the gambler Nathan Detroit and Joan Kobin as Adelaide, whose engagement (14 years) lasted longer than some marriages.

Co-starred were Cris Channingin the garb of a gambler and Teri Phillips as the save-a-soul sergeant, Sarah Brown.

Elia brought exhuberance to his role of the sweet but sneaky Nathan, whose crap games floated from the heights of the Mission to the depths of the sewer.

Elia's perfect timing in a demanding role was a joy to behold.

Miss Kobin's interpretation of Adelaide, who wanted to exchange sneezes for squeezes was a highlight of the production and her "Lament" was a masterpiece.

Teri Phillips as Sarah Brown, the Salvation Army lass, who searched for sinners and found the king of them all, did an excellent job especially when she exchanged her halo for "Milk Shake in Havana."

As Sky Masterson, so named because he bet on everything with the sky as the limit, Chris Channing moved with assurance to the climax, where he became, "end man for the Mission."

Joey Sauter, well known for his now on Broadway "Cindy" did nicely, nicely thank you as the foot-in-mouth, Nicely-Nicely Johnson.

His sidekick, John Apicella also shown in the Benny South-street role. Both took a beating on stage but rated an extra loud hand from the audience and Sauter's "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat" was a gem.

Don Norris portraying Arvide Abernathy made a hit with a solo, "More I Cannot Wish You."

Gretchen MacLane was General Matilda Cartright, stern overseer of the Mission. His biggest contribution, however, was choreographed for the company. Musical numbers were well staged and added a star to her crown.

Songs by Frank Loesser, who has created a wealth of juke box hits, added sweetness and spice to the musical incarnation of Broadway, written by Abe Burrows and Joe Swerling.

The twin pianos and musical fingers of Douglas Finney and Richard Samuels were aided and abetted by drummer James T. Erwin. Finny is also musical director, with Samuels his assistant.

Producer Anthony Carone, introduced by Rotary Club president The Rev. Larry Lindermuth, spoke briefly before the first act curtain.

Charles Haubert, whose dream of an off-Broadway showcase in the Poconos, came true nearly 40 years ago when such greats as Ethel Barrymore appeared on the stage he built, was introduced.

Then the audience, the producer and the cast waited for the curtain to rise on "Guys and Dolls" as a sort of re-birth for the old theater.

When the curtain did go up it immediately became apparent that this was a bang-up new beginning.

Blast Victims To Share $42,096

STROUDSBURG — The Marshalls Creek Disaster Fund — which yesterday totaled $42,096 in pledges — will be distributed among families in immediate need, children and families of blast victims, Marshalls Creek Fire Company and needy persons who suffered property damage.

The 10-man committee met yesterday in the Monroe County courthouse and set up an association to render aid to persons affected by last Friday's blast who are in immediate need.

The committee said the fund — sponsored by Stroudsburg radio station WVPO — will also provide a long range planning program for the children of the six who lost their lives in the explosion.

Also discussed was a similar long range program for the injured and the families of six who died.

Some of the money, according to a committee statement, will be used to replace equipment needed to get the Marshalls Creek Fire Co. back to normal operations. The company lost three pieces of equipment in the blast.

President Judge Fred W. Davis resigned from the committee because "membership on the committe is incongruous with his judicial duties," the statement said.

Mrs. Harold S. Pond of Stroudsburg was named to replace Judge Davis.

The committee will meet again Tuesday to formulate further plans for distributing money. In the meantime, individual committee members will meet with persons and families in need of immediate aid.

Last night a total of $33,600 was deposited in the First Stroudsburg National Bank from the more than $42,000 in pledges. Line Material of East Stroudsburg contributed $500 yesterday.

Serving on the committee in addition to Mrs. Pond, who was elected secretary, are Jesse D. Pierson, chairman; Joseph Lisicky, treasurer; Stuart F. Pipher, county commissioner; Atty. Arlington Williams and Dr. LeRoy Koehler, president of East Stroudsburg State College.

Also Chester S. Miller, WVPO station manager, Francis Shinn and the Rev. Harold C. Eaton.

One Injured In Car Crash At Long Pond

LONG POND — One person suffered a bruised forehead in a collision on Long Pond Rd. last night, state police at the Fern Ridge substation said.

Injured was Shirley Petkus of Jim Thorpe, passenger in a car driven by Dorothy E. Heimbach of Long Pond, according to police.

They reported that the Heimbach car was on a one-lane bridge when a car driven by Arthur Atlemose of Saylorsburg, RD 1, approached. When Atlemose applied his brakes, he skidded on the rain wet road, police continued.

Atlemose's car suffered $150 damages, Heimbach's $200, they said.

BACK TO NORMAL—Capt. Rex. Worthy, new commander of the Salvation Army Citadel, East Stroudburg, gets down to business as usual after a hectic introduction to his new post. Worthy, 29, arrived June 25 in time to get involved in the Marshalls Creek blast. (Photo by McNeil)

Captain Worthy, SA, Lends Worthy Hand

EAST STROUDSBURG — Capt. Rex Worthy, new commander of the Salvation Army Citadel on S. Courtland St., didn't know what he was getting into when he took over from Maj. H. G. Baker the afternoon f June 25.

He got a call for help at the site of the truck explosion Friday morning at 5:45 a.m. Despite the fact that he "didn't know where to turn on a spigot" at his new command, Worthy, with the help of Baker, who returned from his journey to assist, had a truck at the disaster scene by 7 a.m.

Before they left Sunday night, the Army had served 85 gallons of coffee and cold drinks, and some 700 sandwiches to workers at the scene, Worthy said.

He said they had workers on the scene continuously until 3 a.m. Saturday morning.

Worthy, 29, has had experience with disasters before. He worked at the site of the 30th St. Station blast at Philadelphia in 1956, and drove convoys of supplies to Bethlehem from Philadelphia during the 1955 flood. Worthy said the Philadelphia blast was nowhere near as powerful as that at Marshalls Creek.

Worthy is marrid and has two small children. He became associated with the Army in Erie, Pa., his home town, in 1949. He became an officer of the corps in 1955, and received his captain's commission in 1958. At that time he commanded the Army citadel in Darby, Pa.

From 1960 to 1963, Worthy commanded the corps at Pen Argyl, and was then transferred to the Roxborough, Philadelphia, corps. He served there until his arrival here.

Worthy has also done work with the USO at Fort Dix, N.J., and with alcoholics in Wilmington, Del. He is especially interested in youth work, and wants to keep up his interest here.

Worthy said his aim now is to carry on the work of Maj. Baker, who was transferred to Hamilton, Ohio, to command one of the largest corps in the entire division. He said that plans for the future include improved facilities. The Army here is currently planning to secure a new building.

Also new to the local citadel is Lt. Eunice Sterling of Lockport, N.Y., who is serving her first assignment here.

Farmer Appointed School Director

EAST STROUDSBURG—Ernest R. Farmer, president and general manager of Shawnee Press in Delaware Water Gap, was appointed yesterday to fill the unexpired term of the late Clyde M. Schaller on the East Stroudsburg Borough School Board.

At a meeting yesterday, the board voted, 3-2, to appoint Farmer for a three and one-half year term.

Ada Somers and William Cook also received votes in the balloting.

Farmer said his firm, a division of Waring Enterprises, is in "constant contact with schools and therefore I have an interest in educational development all over the country.

"This is in addition to being a parent with three children in school. I am pleased and hope to be of some useful service to the board."

Farmer was an unsuccessful candidate for school directr in the general election in November, 1962.

He lives with wife and three children on Berwick Heights, Road.

60 Firemen Battle Big Barn Fire

WASHINGTON TWP. — Sixty firemen from three fire companies were unable to prevent the destruction of a 50-year-old barn on the farm of Edmund Bartholomew, Franklin Hill Rd., Washington Twp., late Wednesday night.

The fire, started by a bolt of lightning, destroyed a truck, car, tractor, hay rake, mower and other machinery stored in the barn.

Damage was estimated at $20,000 to $30,000.

Lack of adequate water supply hampered efforts of firemen from Sandts Eddy, Bangor and Plainfield Twp. in their fight to extinguish the blaze. The Lower Mt. Bethel Ambulance Corps also responded and remained until about midnight.

When firemen arrived, the barn was burning so fiercely that it was beyond saving. Efforts were concentrated on saving a garage and shed nearby. Because of the wind direction, the home of the 83-year-old owner was not endangered.

A creek and nearby pond were so low that firemen had to drive to Ackermanville to replenish their water when it was exhausted.

Two dogs were burned so severely that they had to be destroyed.

The farm is in the soil bank, and not being worked at the present time.

Our Declaration

We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

That to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence indeed will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes.

And accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.

But when a long train of abuses and ursurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security.

—From the Declaration of Independence, made by the original 13 states in Congress in Philadelphia and unanimously adopted July 4, 1776—188 years ago.

A Revolutionary Document

The American Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, remains today one of the most important documents in the history of mankind.

The heart of that famous document, repeated above, is full of revolutionary political ideas—principles which still inspire efforts to "alter or abolish" existing governments guilty of "absolute despotism" or simply unjust rule.

Americans do not realize what impact that declaration has today in Africa, for instance, where young nationalists read and quote and act on it in their efforts to gain and maintain freedom for new nations.

Here in America, we are still struggling to make its promises come true for all citizens of this democracy.

It may have been "self-evident" to some Americans in 1776 that "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

But it is not "self-evident" to all Americans today any more than it was to all American colonialists in 1776 who owned slaves and required ownership of property as a qualification for voting.

It is still an ideal for which we strive and toward which we develop slowly — by elimination of the property requirement for voting, by emancipation of the slaves, by allowing women to vote, and by passing the civil rights bill of 1964.

The Declaration of Independence was a radical statement of democratic ideals. It was a challenge to live in freedom in 1776. It is a living challenge to America in 1964.

Comment Of The Day

"Perhaps it was ever thus, but it seems to us that it's becoming increasingly difficult for people to debate the political questions of mid-century America without imputing to those of differing views either the thickest stupidity or the darkest of motives."

—From an editorial in the Wall Street Journal.

Seeing Eye Phone

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON—Possibly it is nothing more than the sheerest coincidence, but Picturephone Service between Washington, New York, and Chicago was inaugurated here almost simultaneously with the disclosure of a remarkably advanced type of call girl service.

See-while-you talk telephoning costs $7 a minute. Rates for the other utility have not been set by the Public Utilities Commission.

The Bell System calls its seeing-eye device "The Telephone of Tomorrow." The newly-revealed call girl system is futuristic in many aspects too, although basically it is rated as one of the older forms of free enterprise.

The operator of the latter service maintained her nerve center in a neighboring Maryland suburb. Apparently a modern business woman to her lacquered fingertips, she kept an index filing system with 1900 cards.

Prince Georges County Prosecutor Arthur A. Marshall is now custodian of these cards, but seemingly disposed to hand them over to Congressional investigators. He says they list names of members of Congress, important business executives, and half a dozen men who figured in the probe of former Secretary to the Senate Majority Bobby Baker.

But the Picturephone might prove a mixed blessing to ladies of the evening who get called on the look-talk device. If the callable ladies could see the face of the man calling them they might be able to distinguish a bona fide client from an entrapment-minded vice copper.

On the other hand, they might not enjoy being hailed before the Federal Communications Commission any more than before a police court.

Moreover, they might risk loss of business. A prospective client would have the advantage of an assessing look before embarking on negotiations, and not buy a pig in a poke, if the call ladies will pardon the expression.

Also on the debit side, the Picturephone is still far from perfected, and it is not unimaginable that wires might cross and the call lady get connected with the hot line to Moscow. To have Khrushchev suddenly pop up before her on the lookaphone could well unnerve her to the point where she'd decide to go into some other line of endeavor.

The Small Business Administration supplies members of Congress with many services which the legislators can pass on to constituents. The SBA also has supplied Rep. Joseph Michael McDade of Pennsylvania with a baffling and confounding mystery.

The 32-year-old Mr. McDade, a freshman Republican, contacted SBA Administrator Eugene P. Foley a few days ago on behalf of his voters back home in Scranton. McDade asked Foley to send him brochures on how to start a small business; how to obtain a small business loan; and lists of new inventions available for manufacture.

The SBA, which has loaned out $2,321,000, and sent Congressmen tons of helpful hints in the eleven years of its existence, processed the McDade request with dispatch. The very next day it delivered a package to the Congressman's office.

Rep. McDade just happened to be present when the package was opened by his administrative assistant, Frank O'Gorman. The solon looked as shocked as if he'd just heard that his city of Scranton was going for Goldwater.

In the package were no pamplets on how to snare loans; no advice on how to make a better mousetrap.

All it contained was a pair of women's shoes.

The shoes were Size 7½ A, and—as Rep. McDade described them—"weatherbeaten white sandal-type shoes." All the GOP females in Mr. McDade's office declared they wouldn't wear them to a Democratic rally, although Administrative Assistant O'Gorman, who has six daughters, said he was sorely tempted to glom onto them.

The footgear was returned at once to SBA Administrator Foley, along with a note begging him to please penetrate the mystery. Foley sent back word that he had given it up as impenetrable.

The Pennsylvania Story

Shoe-String Schedule

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:

The Scranton Campaign Schedule—Pennsylvania's Governor William Warren Scranton in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination is running on just about as fluid and shoe stringish a schedule as has ever been programmed — and even "programmed" is hardly the word.

This of course has been necessitated by his extremely late and sudden entry into the GOPresidential fray, but strangely enough (and typical of the Scrantonian "luck") it has worked out amazingly well . . . This is what we mean:

Ordinarily, major campaign schedules are laid out weeks, sometimes even months, ahead . . . In the case of the Scranton blast there simply hasn't been time for this preliminary heraldry, horn blowing, meticulous folderol, etc. . . It's been scramble from the beginning.

Upshot: the campaigning schedule rarely runs more than a few days ahead, and even then is subject to change —although interestingly there have been few changes of a major nature in any instance . . . For example, at the beginning of this week the campaign schedule was finalized only through Thursday — and as of midweek strategists at campaign headquarters here in Harrisburg didn't know whether the Governor would be home at "Marworth" near Scranton for a few sparkler flurries over the July 4th weekend, at the Executive Mansion at nearby Indiantown Gap—or on the campaign trail in Upper Mongalia!

"Where's The Boss Now? — Notwithstanding all the last minute throw-together of the campaign schedule, Scranton campaign headquarters here in downtown Harrisburg knows where the boss is at all times.

About the only time there's a bit of uncertainty is when he's flying from one campaign spot to another but even then they know his take-off time, estimated time of arrival and the approximate spot in the sky where he's supposed to be enroute.

Scranton aides accompanying the Governor — and oftimes the Governor himself — invariably check with Harrisbug on arrival and departure at campaign points, both to pick up any "dope" that might be worthy of passing on either for or from headquarters, and to keep headquarters posted as the campaign day and night wears on.

Turning The Tables — During the gubernatorial campaign of 1962 then candidate W. W. Scranton pledged that if elected he would create "a committee of 100,000 Pennsylvanians" to work for the economic rehabilitation of the Keystone State.

He became Governor and he did create such a committee which has been busy boosting Pennsylvania with every opportunity, sponsoring advertisements singing the praise of the Keystone State, etc.

This week however Scranton people were somewhat nettled to find of all things, an organization under way known as "The Committee of 100,000 Pennsylvanians — For Goldwater"! . . . Snapped one Scranton aide (still left here on the scene): "Can't anyone come up with anything original these days? Now the opposition is even copying the Governor's personal idea of back in 1962 — underscoring the opposition's complete lack of initiative and inability to move on its own!"

"But We Don't Work Here!" — A couple of lawmakers were back on Capital Hill this week taking care of back home constituent business . . . One lawmaker had in his possession his "bill" for his "Occupation Privilege Tax" ($5)levied by Harrisburg people who work in the Capital City.

Snapped one semi-frothing legislator: "I'll be danged if I'll pay that tax; why, we don't work here" — to which this columnist couldn't help but add:

"Well, that seems to be the general complaint of many of your constituents!"

(At which point the "semi" dropped from the frothing!)

Dear Abby

Ayes and Nayes

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Were you serious when you asked your readers if they considered it "cheating" to use a dictionary and other reference books while working a crossword puzzle? Of course it's cheating! The whole idea of the crossword puzzle is to test you on how many words and their definitions you KNOW. Not how many of the answers you can find somewhere.

PLAYS FAIR

DEAR ABBY: Although I have never used (or owned) an X-Word dictionary in my many years of combat with the puzzles, I would not consider it "cheating" to use one if necessary. After all, the word you look up today, you may remember tomorrow. I think most, if not all, puzzlers aspire to work out the solution without book reference. But if I am asked whether Panama City is in Texas or in Florida, and I must look at a map, is that cheating?

BILL AGAIN

DEAR ABBY: This is in answer to your question, "Is it considered cheating to use a dictionary while working a crossword puzzle?" No, it is most assuredly NOT. How many educated people know the two-letter word for an Ugandian six-toed bitter vetch? When the puzzle requires such a word, and I have to look it up, I do not feel as though I am cheating. I figure that the author of the crossword puzzle is cheating. How about asking the geniuses who make up these puzzles for their opinions?

R. B. S.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to meet the person who can complete a crossword puzzle without using any tools, such as a dictionary or reference books. Crossword puzzles are comprised primarily of words that are never used in ordinary conversation, and never appear anywhere except in crossword puzzles.

Would YOU know what the six-letter word for the jackal god of the necropolis was? As a clue, he is usually represented as the son of OSIRIS, who shared with THOTH the office of conductor of the dead to the judgment hall in AMENTI. The answer is NAUBIS. Why, how simple! I am sure you knew it all the time but it slipped your mind.

HUGH

DEAR ABBY: Working a crossword puzzle is a game. The puzzle versus me. If I can solve the puzzle on my own, I am the winner. When I find it necessary to consult a dictionary, I admit defeat. But I am still curious enough to try to find that word in order to complete the puzzle. The feeling of triumph, however, is absent.

ISABEL

DEAR ABBY: I fail to understand how one can "cheat" in a game where only he is playing. In working a crossword puzzle, the object is to complete it. If a puzzle is so simple that it can be completed without any research, I would consider it a waste of time. I use a large unabridged dictionary, a Bible, a World Atlas and a set of encyclopedia when I undertake to work a crossword puzzle, and I feel that I gain much by doing so. To do "research" increases one's knowledge, and is certainly not "cheating."

A. S. B.

DEAR ABBY: If it is considered "cheating" to use a dictionary while working a crossword puzzle, then it is also cheating to use a slide rule in order to solve a mathematical problem.

About Town

From the April TRUE

While stationed at Pearl Harbor during World War II, a sergeant and a buck private were court-martialed for striking an officer.

Asked for his reason for committing such an act, the sergeant explained that the colonel had stepped on his sore foot while passing down the line of review. "Instinctively," said the sergeant, "I threw up my guard — as anyone would — and let him have it before I had realized what had actually happened. It was an accident, I can assure you, sir," added the sergeant.

The buck private, when asked for his explanation, replied, "Well, you see, sir, when I saw the sergeant hit the colonel I thought the war was over."

Youth is that wonderful time in life when the fate of the world seems to hang on whether or not the ball goes through the basket.

Dear Mr. President: Now that we've spent the proceeds from the tax cut like you urged us to do, what next?

Explosive Inspector Believes Radio Wave Set Off Explosion

Editor, The Daily Record:

For nearly 20 years I was employed at one of the country's largest arsenals . . . 19 of those years were spent in safety work with explosives.

In my tenure in the safety department, I inspected scores of trucks loaded with all kinds and types of explosives and feel well qualified to make the following statements.

Before and during the war years, thousands of explosive trucks both incoming and outgoing were inspected by the safety department for compliance with both War Department and Interstate Commerce Commission regulations.

From the reports I have read in the Record, I have come to the following conclusions:

1. The truck should not have been left unattended.

2. The truck was not inspected properly before starting its trip. The tires were poor. Two tires rarely blow out at the same time.

3. The driver when he left the vehicle did not put out warning reflectors or flares on the roadway to warn traffic in each direction.

4. Blasting caps in the vehicle were not properly packed, wires not shorted to prevent energizing by radio waves from passing or approaching vehicles.

5. The explosion was caused by the radio receiving or sending on the fire apparatus, energizing the blasting caps which in turn detonated the dynamite causing the explosion.

In view of the foregoing conclusion, I make the following suggestion:

That the district attorney of Monroe County request the commanding officer, Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N.J., to send him personnel qualified in the handling, packing, shipping of high explosives and electric detonators.

Also that the district attorney get the truck inspection certificate of the truck involved in the explosion.

Young Man Supports S&L Assn.

Edito, The Daily Record:

I am a young man and work in East Stroudsburg. I am happy to see somone trying to open a Federal Home & Savings Association here because I am familiar with the problems of young people who do not have a large enough down payment to buy a house.

This will assist them in getting a mortgage that will be spread out over a greater number of years than they can get from our local banks.

This will greatly contribute to the progress of Monroe County and keep our young people at home rather than moving out of the region.

Another reason is that it would be more convenient for the people to get their money here rather than go to First Federal of Wilkes-Barre where they have been going in order to get their money.

It is a lot easier to do business at home rather than to travel many, many miles and to deal out of the County.

'Deepest Sympathy' Extended To Families Of Blast Victims

Editor, The Daily Record:

My family and I wish to convey our deepst sympathy to each family affected by the tragedy of last Friday . . . those who lost dear ones, the ones in the hospital and all who suffered material losses.

There is very little that can be said to make up their losses, but I think the words of this beautiful hymn, which I love so dearly, may bring a little comfort to them:

Not now, but in the coming years,
It may be in the better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there, sometime, we'll understand.
We'll catch the broken thread again,
And finish what we here began.
Heaven will the mysteries explain,
And then, oh then, we'll understand.
We'll know why clouds instead of sun
Were over many a cherish plan,
Why song has ceased when scarce begun.
Tis there, sometime, we'll understand.
God knows the way; He holds the key.
He guides with unerring hand.
Sometime with tearless eyes we'll see;
Yes, there, up there, we'll understand.
Then trust in God through all the days;
Fear not, for he doth hold thy hand.
Though dark they way, still sing and praise.
Some time, some time, we'll understand.

Nurses Aides Are Not Registered

Editor, The Daily Record:

In writing news articles in your paper in connection with any type of facility employing registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, and nurses aides, I wish to point out that a grave error is being made by referring to the entire personnel of this facility as nurses.

I refer to the article concerning Pleasant Valley Manor in which you state there are 10 nurses employed in this facility.

If you check you will find 98 per cent of these nurses referred to are in reality nurses aides.

In the State of Pensylvaia there are only two classifications of nurses. 1. Registered nurse, graduate of three year educational program. 2. Licensed practical nurse, graduate one year educational program.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Readers Are Asking

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

WHAT are the advantages of breast-feeding a newborn infant?

The greatest advantage is felt to lie in the psychological effect rather than in the nutritional value of the mother's milk.

The intimate contact between mother and child often brings a satisfying sense of achievement to many of today's young mothers.

Pasteurized and homogenized animal milk is almost as nutritive and healthful.

If a child hurts his head, how can a parent tell if it is serious?

It is helpful to know if there was even a momentary period of unconsciousness. Any symptoms of severe headache, changes in vision, or unusual behavior deserve the immediate attention of a physician.

If you are concerned, find out — don't guess.

What are the reasons for the need to urinate frequently?

This may reflect low grade infections or inflammations of the urinary bladder (cystitis). In males, an enlarged prostate gland can cause this urge. Excesses of alcohol, coffee, or even plain water are eliminated quickly by the body and may be responsible for the need. Some medications can produce the same result. During pregnancy there is a very frequent urge to urinate because of pressure on the bladder from the enlarged womb.

A physical examination, including a simple urinalysis (examination of the urine) may easily reveal the cause and determine the treatment.

Is it true that a seven-month premature baby has a better chance for survival and health than an eight-month baby?

No. This is a persistent but false "old wives' tale." The longer the pregnancy lasts, the better are the chances for health in a premature infant.

Why do older people so often fracture their hips in a simple fall?

The bone structure of the hip joint in the elderly is more brittle and less resilient than in the young.

A hip fracture can be painful and result in a long period of incapacitation.

Simple precautions can often prevent falls and fractures. Protect the elderly by making sure that the home has adequare lighting, handrails on steps and stairways, non-slip rugs and similar safety features which will also safeguard the health of the entire family.

SAFETY RULES FOR SWIMMING

Safety in swimming is the keynote to the maximum enjoyment of this delightful sport.

Swimming is an exercise and, like all exercises, conditioning must not be too rapid. Muscles that have been dormant all winter need a gentle breaking-in period to avoid overexertion.

Observe Rules, Have Fun

A few simple rules will make swimming a pleasurable experience:

1) No horse play.

2) Do not swim alone.

3) Do not swim immediately after eating. Wait at least one half hour to avoid the possibility of abdominal cramps.

4) Know your swimming limitations. Stay within your own safe depth.

5) Do not swim too far out. Remember that you will be more tired on the return trip than you were when you started fresh from shore.

6) Do not stay in the water long enough to be chilled and become blue.

7) Do not try to compete with swimmers who have more stamina and skill.

Reporter's Notebook

STROUDSBURG — Droves of out-of-town reporters descended on Stroudsburg following the truck explosion that took six lives last Friday.

Among them was a woman journalist from the Hearst owned *New York Journal-*American who fit the television stereotype of the tough, rather heartless newshound.

She was middle-aged, stout, mean-looking, with bleached blond hair and a ruddy complexion. She carried a large notebook, and had in tow a photographer who looked straight out of the Charles MacArthur-Ben Hecht play, "Front Page."

She and the photographer went into the office of Harry Smith, hospital superintendent, who gave her a list of the injuried, and named Mrs. Lillian Paesch as one of the dead. Smith explained at least twice that the hospital was the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Leaving Smith's office, she pounced on William Paesch, husband of the dead woman. He was hustled out of the hospital, away from her.

At that point, having been refused permission to see any of the injured by Dr. L. W. Hunsicker, she happened to over-hear the room number of one victim.

She is reported to have burst into the room of the victim, shoving nurses aside in the process, and was ejected from the hospital at this point.

There are no other reports on her activities. However, that *morning the Journal-*American appeared with inch-high headlines, "Blast Rips Poconos," "Fear 7 Dead, Many Injured."

There were six dead.

The story said that the blast had killed four men (what happened to Mrs. Paesch?), and that an undetermined number of injured had been rushed to East Stroudsburg General Hospital (Harry Smith listed 10).

The New York hot-shot could have stayed home and read the Associated Press wire, they had all the facts straight.

Rate Hike Requested

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Reading Steam Heat & Power Co. asked the Public Utility Commission Thursday for permission to raise rates 25 per cent on Sept. 1. The company said the increase, affecting 321 customers, would produce an estimated $68,000 more annually "to offset operating losses."

State Rejects Mine Permit

HARRISBURG (AP)—An application for a mine drainage permit to operate in Georges Twp. of Fayette County was refused by the Sanitary Water Board Thursday.

The permit was sought by Norman Spaw of Fairchance RD 1 for a 15-acre deep mine that would have discharged waste into an unnamed run on Mountain Creek. The board, in refusing the permit, said Mountain Creek is a clean stream which supplies water for fishing lakes.

Death Row Con Gets New Trial

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The state Supreme Court Wednesday ordered a new trial for Joseph J. Meas, 27, of Reading, under a death sentence for the 1962 slaying of a 14-year-old girl.

Justice Michael A. Eagen, in a 5-1 decision with Chief Justice John C. Bell dissenting, held that a new trial is mandatory because instructions of the Berks County Court to the jury "were prejudicially erroneous in important respects."

Meas was convicted of killing Janis Schmielewski whom he accosted at a drinking fountain on a Reading playground. An autopsy showed that although Meas apparently choked the girl she died of drowning. He was charged with pushing her into the Schuylkill River as she lay naked on a chaise lounge mattress.

Meas, whose trial defense was insanity, had served time in a state perison for arson and at the time of the killing was free in parole.

State Police Vow Thriller Of Rodeo

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — They don't ride bucking broncs or rope calves at the State Police Rodeo, but it's just as thrilling and chiling as any western.

"Our trick riding and motorcycle will put you on the edge of your seat," promises Maj. Paul A. Rittelmann, commandant of the State Police Academy here.

The State Police Rodeo, getting ready for its annual one-month tour, requires the same intense precision as riding Brahman bulls or bulldogging.

The danger is there too, as evidenced by the fact that several men usually wind up with busted or chipped bones and bruises.

"We have one or two men with chipped bones now and that will kep them out a month," said Rittelmann. Rehearsals for the show, which annually makes its tour during August, are under way at the Academy.

Capt. John E. Tompson, the Academy's director of training, is in over-all command of the show.

In addition to trick horseback riding and motorcycling, other acts include precision drills by the Academy's two dozen horses, which are sometimes used to quell riots; gymnastics; exhibitions with the organization's bloodhounds and other dogs, trick shooting, and clowns.

The show will be put together for the first time July 30 at the Hershey Stadium with the public invited to watch.

The 65-man team will give two rodeo shows daily at Altoona on Aug. 7, Lewistown Aug. 11, Hazleton Aug. 14, Kingston Aug. 18, Scranton Aug. 21 and Hershey Aug. 27.

"We hold the rodeo in August because it is easiest then to line up the fields and stadiums needed," said Rittelmann, who was a trick rider during the mid 1930's.

The rodeo, which has been free to the public since 1938, is not held at any other time during the year, despite constant requests.

"It requires too much preparation and we have to pull men in from the various troops," the major explained.

The rodeo, which settled to its present form about 1934 evolved from the field meets the state police held in its early days.

Dutch Folk Festival Opens Friday

KUTZTOWN, Pa. (AP)—It is a merry household. The showpiece of the home is an eight-foot pine tree, decorated ingeniously with ornaments made by the family. Candles burn and bells chime.

It is Christmas. . . .

Hallucinations, surely, what with the mercury boiling in the 88 to 100 range.

Wrong. It is truly December in July—at the Kutztown Dutch Folk Festival, which opens Friday and continues through July 11, the 15th edition of a show which draws up to 110,000 vistors each year from over all this country and from Canada.

The Christmas scene is one of the features of the festival this year, combining with a variety of other attractions to create a fair which the sponsors like to think of as being educational as well as fun.

The sights include an Amish pageant, demonstrations of arts and crafts, water - witching, "hex" artistry, pow-wow healing, a dozen or more styles of folk dancing, old-fashioned weddings.

Egg Heads Hit Myth They're Stuffy Lot

NEW YORK (AP)—Gather together several geniuses, ply tween, however, might well be drinks, and what are they apt to do?

Swap the latest jokes, discuss the Beatles and talk baseball.

Sandwiched somewhere in betwen, however, might well be authoritative references to centuries-old Chinese art, the ancient Janizary system of Turkish army structure and the theory of relativity.

Diversity Key?

"Diversity is the hallmark of the genius," said Victor V. Serebriakoff, a British inventor with a mental capacity that deies rating by test.

"We eggheads have a sense of humor—a very sharp sense of humor," he said. "and our conversations are not devoted exclusively to heady, lofty topics as so many people seem to think."

Serebriakoff, international secretary of the Mensa Club — an exclusive organization with 5,500 members who scored beyond 161 on the Cattell intelligence test — denies claims that mental giants are stuffy.

"You get a few of the Mensa people together ot an evening for a few drinks and some conversation and any number of matters are apt to come under consideration," he said.

Beatle Interest Too

"Why shouldn't we discuss the Beatles — they are an amusing part of the scene today and they can be an interesting topic," he said.

The soccer matches in Europe and baseball and football in America, he said, also play a part in everyday conversations among geniuses.

"I must admit that when a group of Mensa members has a formal meeting such as we are having here at this time, the talks tend to get a bit lofty." Serebriakoff conceded. "But there is humor injected, you can be sure of that."

Plead For Commie Unity

Nikita's Foes Work For His Defeat

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's opponents in the Red camp are calling for defeat of his policies —and thus probably for his downfall — as the only way to save world Communist unity.

Moscow, its tone sounding more and more desperate, is twisting the arms of reluctant Red chieftains in a drive for an international meeting and a showdown on Red China's challenge to the Kremlin.

But the quarrel, says one pro-Chinese voice, already is at "the brink of the abyss." And top Soviet leaders themselves admit the battle has gone beyond the question of how to hasten world revolution and has extended to government relations between the two Red giants. Moscow offers to "normalize" at least the government relations, but gets no nibbles from Peking.

The North Viet Nam Communists, now under Peking's thumb and reflecting its views, said in their theoretical journal a few days ago that activities of the "revisionists"—the epithet for Khrushchev — "have driven the international Communist movement to the abyss of open division."

The journal went on: "It is necessary to defeat thoroughly the modern revisionists. Convinced that revisionism will surely be defeated, we must, while revisionism still is not yet entirely defeated, struggle to check acts of sabotage of the revisionists."

Peking is picking up recruits around the world. What Moscow must regard as dangerous contagion—the division of parties into opposing camps — spreads rapidly.

Two examples: The Japanese party has announced another purge, throwing out eight pro-Moscow members. In Chile, where Communists had high hopes of making electoral progress this year, a dissident group has organized, and has issued its own pro-Chinese newspaper.

In an attempt to check this splintering, the Kremlin is driving hard for a conference, as soon as possible, of Communist leaders. It is supported by such parties as those of France, West Germany, India and others. But advocates of caution oppose it. It makes Poland's Communist leaders unhappy. The Romanians don't want a meeting. The Italian party, Europe's largest, wants foot-dragging "preparations." Many Red leaders dread the shock that could result from such a parley.

Peking says it might be ready for a meeting in "four or five years." The Kremlin has informed its followers they should favor a meeting quickly, and that Moscow is "emphatically against postponing the conference for four or five years or more."

County Probing Heating At Jail

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners yesterday took under advisement a series of suggestions for improving the heating system in the county jail.

Adolph Rake and Elmer J. Keifer of Rinker, Keifer and Rake, architects, met with the commissioners and engineer John Stevens.

Stevens submitted three proposals for improving the heating system.

Proposal one involves removing the existing stoker and boiler and replacing with an oil burner. It would retain the one-pipe steam heat system, which has been found inadequate to heat the jail, Stevens said. The price for this would be about $5,400.

Proposal two would involve installation of a new boiler and a two-pipe heating system, with steam heat. The price would be between $8,500 and $9,000.

Most Economical

Proposal three was recommended by Stevens as the most economical and effective in the long run. It would cost between $8,800 and $9,300, and involves installing an oil burner and hot water heating system.

The hot water system would allow zoned controls, so that portions of the jail not in use could use less heat. Also, Stevens said, hot water allows more precise temperature control.

In other business, chief clerk William Reaser said that a new accounting system in the commissioner's office went into effect yesterday, and will save the county about $1,000 per year.

He said that initial outlay to the Burroughs Co. for a pegboard system cost $386.

Under the new system, one office worker is handling the work that was done by two, saving a total of 12½ hours per week for both workers.

Also, the commissioners are spared the job of signing 90 pay vouchers per week, a great deal of the treasurer's work is eliminated, and a savings of over $1,000 is effected, Reaser said.

District Attorney James R. Marsh introduced William Straub, the new county detective, to the commissioners.

Barrett and Mt. Pocono municipalities have requested outside registration, and a suggestion was made to the board that an outside registration booth be set up at the West End Fair in August.

Named Deputy Assessor

William Roeder, Jr., was named deputy assessor under C. A. Nauman to take over the duties of ailing Kenneth Ericson. Ericson is slated to return to work in six to eight weeks.

July 20 is the effective date for Roeder's start on the job.

The commissioners noted that Monroe County's population has increased to about 42,000. They said that by the next census in 1970, the county should have over 45,000, enough to make it a sixth class, rather than seventh class county.

Russell Mervine, solicitor, said that the governor would certify the change-over of county status and send a notice to the commissioners.

Guardsmen To Leave July 11

EAST STROUDSBURG—Members of Co. C, 1st Battalion, 109th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard, will leave for summer camp at Camp A. P. Hill, Va., July 11.

The men will load themselves in convoy trucks early that morning and move to the intersection of Rt. 22 and the Northeast Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

There they will meet other units of the battalion and begin the link-up with the convoy.

The convoy will travel down Rt. 22 to Lewisberry, near Harrisburg, where the soldiers will eat C-rations for lunch. From there they will take the Baltimore by-pass and head on toward Camp Hill.

After two weeks training at the camp, the unit will rejoin the convoy for the trip home on July 25.

The main body of the convoy will leave Scranton on July 11 and head down the northeast extension. On the return trip, the local Guard members will split off at the turnpike—Rt. 22 intersection.

Of all the units in the 28th Infantry Division, only the artillery and armor units will not train at A. P. Hill. The other units will train at Camp Pickett, Va.

Strict radio communication among the key convey vehicles will be maintained during the trip to summer camp.

Miss Feller Completes Spanish Study

STROUDSBURG — Miss Nancy Feller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell K. Feller of 1198 West Main Street in Stroudsburg, has just completed a year's work under a National Defense Education Act grant to study Spanish in the academic year Foreign Language Institute at San Francisco State College.

Miss Feller is one of twenty-four elementary and secondary school teachers from all parts of the United States selected to receive this grant.

At the Foreign Language Institute, Miss Feller has been studying the most modern methods of foreign language instruction. She has been taking courses in audio-lingual methodology and linguistics.

She also has been participating in area studies of the Spanish-speaking countries, working directly with instructors and conversation assistants from Mexico, Guatemala, Venezuela, and other Latin American countries.

A graduate of Stroudsburg High School, she received her B.A. degree from Pennsylvania State University. She has also attended East Stroudsburg State College, the Inter-American University in Saltillo, Mexico, and the Middlebury Summer Language School.

Miss Feller has completed thirty graduate semester hours of credit in intensive Spanish coursework at the Foreign Language Institute. In September of this year, she plans to return to the teaching of Spanish in the Pennsylvania public schools.

Malcolm X Vows Klan Tactics

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Malcolm X, leader of a new civil rights group he calls Afro-American Unity, declared his people "are ready to give the Ku Klux Klan" a taste of its own medicine in Mississippi and St. Augustine, Fla.

At a news conference in Omaha, where he was born in 1925, Malcolm X said his organization has telegraphed the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. that it is ready to send help to St. Augustine if the federal government does not provide aid.

The day of "turning the other cheek to these brute beasts is over," he said. "We can send enough help to get results."

Marsh Holds 'No Malice' Toward Anyone On Firing

STROUDSBURG — William Marsh of Stroudsburg, who was fired yesterday as an auditor in the state sales and use tax bureau, said, "I considered it a great pleasure to work with these people and I hold no malice or hard feelings toward anyone."

Marsh said he was one of 31 auditors—all college graduates—who were fired by the Scranton Administration.

He said he will resort to a private tax consulting practice.

Marsh was appointed to the job in 1956 by former Gov. George M. Leader and placed under executive civil service status.

During the last session of the state general assembly, the Republican-controlled legislature passed a new civil service law.

Under the new law anyone working under executive civil service was placed on an 18-month probationary period and could be fired for political activity, being guilty of a felony or for unsatisfactory work.

John Gold, bureau director, refused to give the reason for Marsh's dismissal.

Both courses are 17 hours long and includes 15 hours of instruction and a two hour test.

The junior course is open to boys and girls over 12-years-old. The senior course is open to boys and girls who are over 16 years of age.

Morse Blasts Scranton Drive

HARRISBURG (AP)—Otis B. Morse, Democratic state chairman, said recently that much of Gov. Scranton's presidential campaign is being financed "presumably at taxpayers' expenses."

Morse called on the governor to give "a complete listing, naming names and duties, of the corps of state employes from cabinet level to clerical level who are being poured into the frantic Scranton-for-President campaign."

The first federal labor relations law was enacted in 1888 and applied to railroads, providing for arbitration and presidential boards of investigation.

New Eating Spot Opens Tuesday

MARSHALLS CREEK—Green Valley Farms — a new eating and shopping complex — will open Tuesday on Rt. 209, one mile south of Marshalls Creek.

The facility will boast a dairy bar, and many types of food; the specialty of the house will be a Pennsylvania Dutch sweet-sour pork barbeque.

In addition, there will be a country store in an antique motif. The store will feature Pennsylvania Dutch foods and Haddon House gourmet items.

Also, Green Valley Farms will contain a gift shop, stocked with medium-priced unusual gifts; the feature will be Pilgrim blown glass made in W. Va.

"In the future," said Parke Kunkle, one of the incorporators, "we hope to put in a candle shop, a Christmas shop, an antique store, and other small unit stores. It will be similar to a small country village shopping center."

The three buildings now at the facility were just erected, and the grounds offer a "wonderful view and small stream. There is a picnic area and breezeway," Kunkle said.

He added that the incorporators, himself and his wife Mary, and Nelson and Charlotte Westbrook, hope to keep the little shopping village tasteful and a credit to the county.

Urge Front Against Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Costa Rica jointly urged the Organization of American States on Wednesday to "take meaningful steps to demonstrate the collective will of the American republics" to resist Castro-Communist aggression in this hemisphere.

President Johnson and Costa Rica's chief executive, Francisco J. Orlich, voiced this in a joint communique issued after two days of talks.

The communique agreed "that each country must adopt effective measures to defend itself against" subversive agents trained in Cuba and other Communist countries.

Miss Pennsylvania 'Sweet' To '64 Poconos' Queen

WEST CHESTER — Miss Patricia Lee Falcinelli, Miss Poconos of 1964, participated with 19 young ladies from the state for the title of Miss Pennsylvania and the right to represent the state in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City in September.

Winner of the title last weekend was Miss Delaware County, Miss Marilyn Cutaiar March, who was chosen by the panel of five judges on the basis of talent, poise, appearance in swim suit and evening gown.

"She was sweet to all of us," Miss Falcinelli said Saturday after the televised pageant, "We all thought a lot of her and I'm happy for her."

Miss Falcineli, with 9 other contestants took part in a specialty number, written especially for the state pageant by Bernie Wayne, entitled, "We Can't All be Winners.' They then retired to their places onstage as the semi-finalists presented talent, swim suit and evening gown competitions.

"Miss March," Miss Falcinelli, said, "hopes to become a dancing instructor and her talent of a modern toe ballet, gave an indication of her dancing ability."

During the next months, Miss Falcinelli will represent the Poconos in her official capacity by making appearances for the Pocono Mountain Vacation Bureau, which sponsored the April pageant.

Members of the Barrett Junior Women's Club, which produced and directed the pageant attended the state pageant Saturday. Mrs. Robert Besecker, personal manager for Miss Falcinelli, accompanied her to West Chester and will act in her behalf during her reign.

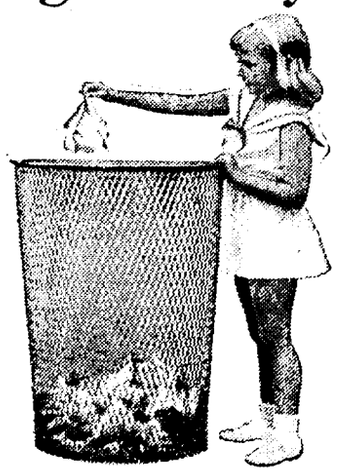
"Mommy, you forgot...every litter bit hurts!"



It happens in the best of families! Mom or Dad forgets that every litter bit hurts. And forgetting is the main cause of the litter mess that mars America's highways—your highways. That first bit of trash you throughtlessly throw away is the beginning of a pile-up that costs millions of tax dollars to clean up. ■ But that's not all that's bad about littering. Remember—as the twig is bent, so grows the tree. A bit of your children's good citizenship training goes out the window with every litter bit you toss away. ■ So, Mom, Dad—lead the way to the litterbag. Carry one in your car at all times. And use it. Make it a family project to Keep America Beautiful!

Modified Split Home Adapts To Changing Family Size

Old Fashion Farmhouse Has Contemporary Look

Traditional characteristics of an old fashioned farmhouse combine with contemporary building techniques to give this house a flavor both comfortably old and dramatically new.

Architect Herman H. York, who designed the house as number H-37 in the House of the Week series, describes it as a modified split level.

One big advantage, apart from its imaginative and pleasing facade, is that it can contain anywhere from three to five bedrooms, depending on the owners' needs.

This means it is one of those rare homes which can expand as the family expands, then serve equally as well in later years without a lot of wasted space when the children grow up and leave home.

The upper level contains four bedrooms (and two full baths) but one of the bedrooms, if not needed, can be absorbed into the master suite as a sitting room — complete with a fireplace, if desired. An optional six-foot opening between it and the master bedroom also allows it to be used as a nursery.

Downstairs there is another optional bedroom, a 10' by 13'4" front room designed primarily as a den or library. But the room has plenty of closet space, is convenient to the downstairs lavatory, and thus can be put to use as a guest room or even a family bedroom.

The living area of the house is designed to handle comfortably all the activities a five-bedroom family would need.

The kitchen is large enough for a dinette table, there is a separate dining room and a room which York calls a "family center" — an airy and bright 15'5" by 18' informal room opening onto a large screened porch.

The basic area of the house the habitable space on the lower levels is only 1,390 square fet. The upstairs is 818 square Over-all dimensions are 74 feet five inches wide by 34 feet 4 inches deep. The house contains a full basement.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The long portico, large living room bay windw, dove cote and shuttered upstairs windows are the main features that give the home its farmhouse flavor. Architect York feels this should be accented with appropriate building materials.

He suggests vertical boards of random width with a V-joint of cedar or redwood, stained dark to contrast with light colored masonry. Though stone is shown, brick would be an equally attractive masonry material. If either is dark rather than light, the wood then should be painted to preserve the contrast.

The stair system in this house leaves the foyer free and open and also provides an attractive balcony arrangement for the living room, complementing a handsome fireplace on the opposite wall.

The kitchen is especially well designed with a double sink, an excellent view of the outdoor play area, plenty of counter and cupboard space, and a step-saving layout of the work zone.

Between the kitchen and the family room is a true work center for the housewife. It contains the rear service entry, a laundry with service cabinets and a handy clothes chute from upstairs, a pantry, and a large lavatory also with fine shelf space.

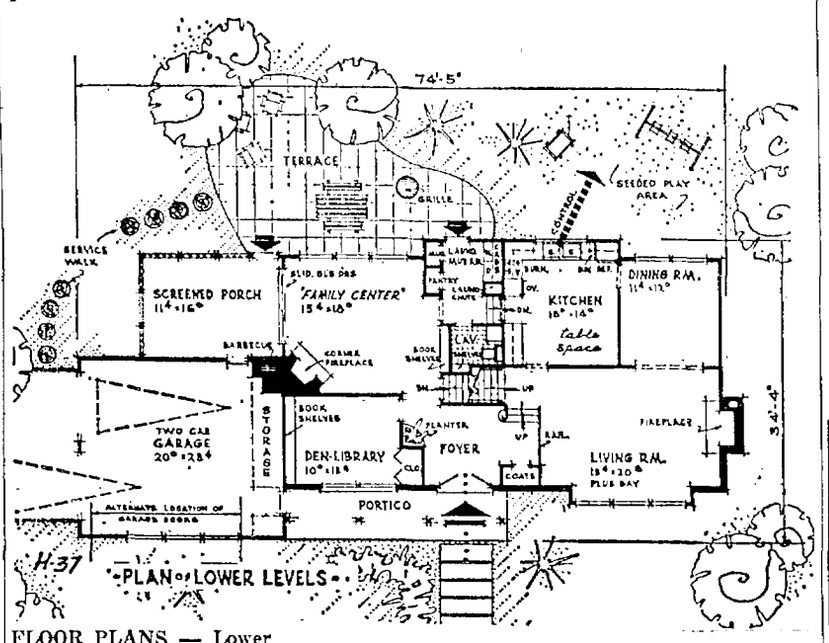
A glazed rear wall and sliding glass doors leading to the screened porch add a feeling of spaciousness to the family room, but its chief characteristic is the corner fireplace. The same chimney serves a built-in barbecue on the screened porch.

In sum, this is a house a family of almost any size can adapt to its own needs, and enjoy for many years.

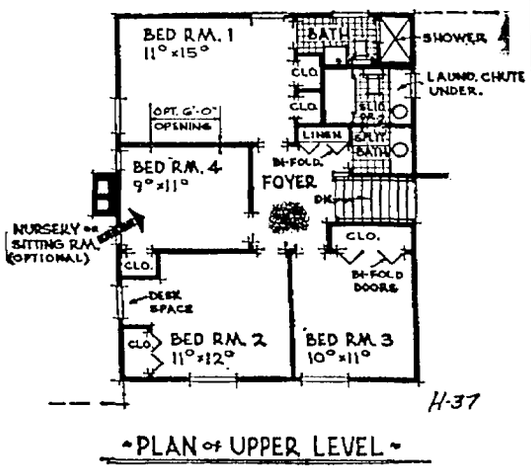
H-37 STATISTICS

A modified split level containing four bedrooms, two and one half baths, in a basic area (on lower levels) of 1,390 square feet. Upper levels contain 818 square feet; screened porch is 191 square feet. Overall dimensions are 74 feet five inches wide by 34 feet 4 inches deep.

HANDSOME BLEND — The facade of this house has a decidedly traditional flavor, but its modified split-level design is completely up to date. The house can contain anywhere from three to five bedrooms, depending on family needs. The architect is Herman H. York.



FLOOR PLANS — Lower levels contain 1,390 square feet of habitable area. There is a basement under the living room, dining room and kitchen. The furnace is located under the living room fireplace.



Helpful Tips On Painting Plywood In Your Home

An attractive finish that does not show the grain is easy to obtain on fir plywood, the most popular material used by the home craftsman, if the surface is first given a coat of penetrating resin sealer to equalize absorption.

The first step, of course, is to prepare the surface. It must be sanded as smooth as possible, be clean and free of any traces of oil, grease or laminating glue. Nail holes and breaks in the surface should be filled and sanded when dry.

If you are planning to end up with a colored, opaque finish which hides the surface completely, brush on a coat of pigmented penetrating sealer. After it has dried, sand lightly to restore a smooth surface, and remove all sandings with your vacuum claner or a cloth dipped in mineral spirits.

Now for the second coat. If the top coat is to be a gloss enamel, the second coat should consist of equal parts of enamel undercoat and the top coat. If the topcoat is to be a latex, apply a second coat of the resin sealer. Sand lightly before applying the final coat by brush, spray or roller.

When you purchase your sealer and top coat, be sure you are getting a quality product, because only quality paints and sealers will give you the service you want and expect.

Many people prefer a so-called natural finish on good quality plywood, one that shows the grain of the wood. First of all, you must select plywood which has an attractive pattern and is free of blemishes and plugs. Next, sand the wood as much as possible.

Now brush on a coat of clear penetrating resin sealer. After this has dried, sand lightly with fine or extra-fine paper. More than likely you will want to color the wood to some degree. You can either apply a coat of wood stain, a coat of colored penetrating sealer, or you can tint clear resin sealer with color-in-oil of the desired shade, reducing the sealer 25 per cent with paint thinner. Whichever you use, let stand for a few minutes and then wipe off to get the color you want.

After the color coat has dried thoroughly, sand lightly as before, and then brush on one or two coats of varnish of the desired sheen.

For modern blond effects, do this after the first coat of sealer has dried. Thin white pigmented resin sealer or enamel undercoat 50-50 with odorless paint thinner and brush on the surface. Let stand for a few minutes and wipe off with a clean, lintless cloth. After this has dried thoroughly, protect the surface with one or two coats of varnish.

IT'S NEATER THIS WAY

Have you ever used paint from its original container and then found when you were putting it away that you had gotten paint all over your hands from the drips on the can? Try this idea the next time you paint, suggests the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. Wrap some aluminum foil around the can and set it on top of a paper plate or old pie tin. The aluminum foil and plate will catch the runs. Then, all you have to do is remove both and you will have a clean container to put away.

Air Conditioning Cuts Heat

In summer, a cool house is usually a clean one. This added benefit of air conditioning is one attracting many a weary housewife these days.

It makes sense. When a house has a cooling system, the windows are kept closed. Dirt and dust and barbeque smoke can't drift through and deposit themselves at random.

Air conditioning helps housewives in other ways, too. It's a known fact that a family kept cool uses less laundry. And it's no secret, either, that housework can be done much faster and easier in cool comfort than in a hot, stifling atmosphere.

The Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau reports that a popular way to air condition today is to combine cooling with the home's heating system. By adding a water chiller and special room distributors to a hydronic (hot water) system, for instance, a homeowner receives year-round climate control from one system.

DESIGN WATER CLOSETS TO USE LESS WATER

Modern water closets are designed to function efficiently with much less water, says the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

This benefit is extremely important to the homeowner who plans to build or remodel in an area where water must be conserved.

Barbara Bel Geddes Heads Next Show At Playhouse

MOUNTAINHOME — Fresh from two years in New York City as the star of the long-run "Mary-Mary," Barbara Bel Geddes, will pay a theatrical visit to the Pocono Playhouse during the week of July 6, in Somerset Maugham's sparkling comedy about modern marriage, "The Constant Wife."

In a clever examination of "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander" theme, Playwright Maugham probes with deft wit into the relationship of an all-too-understanding wife, her pompous husband and his vapid young girl friend.

He uses a catty younger sister to underscore his verbal jabs at the state of matrimony versus modern society. The supporting cast will include such Broadway regulars as Michael Ryan and Madge West.

Barbara Bel Geddes, the daughter of Norman Bel Geddes, one of this country's most illustrious stage designers, made her Broadway debut in "Out of the Frying Pan."

She was elevated to stardom when she received outstanding acclaim for her performance in Elia Kazan's production of "Deep Are The Roots." Soon after that she again worked under the direction of Kazan in Tennessee William's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof." Six films followed before Broadway reclaimed her for the leading role in John Steinbeck's "Burning Bright."

Though Miss Bel Geddes is known for ability with emotionally demanding roles she also has a way with light comedy. One of her outstanding hits was the long-run "The Moon Is Blue." In '61 she starred with Henry Fonda in "Silent Night, Lonely Night."

"The Constant Wife" will be at the Playhouse for one week only, Monday through Saturday evenings at 8:40 with two matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2:40.

Senate Closes Baker Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee formally closed out its politically-charged Bobby Baker investigation Wednesday and agreed to file its report to the Senate next Wednesday.

The report of the Democratic majority was given a final okay, but Chairman B. Everett Jordan of North Carolina said he would withhold filing it for a week to give the Republican members a chance to complete a minority report.

The Republicans are expected to renew their charge of "whitewash" in the inquiry into the money-making dealings of Baker while he was secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority.

Coolbaugh Firemen To Hold Carnival

TOBYHANNA — A one-week carnival and annual picnic will be held by members of Coolbaugh Twp. Vol. Fire Co., and its Women's Auxiliary at headquarters, starting Saturday July 4.

The entire carnival will be held indoors except the pony rides. A firemen's parade, with units from the Northeastern Pennsylvania Vol. Fire Fighters participating, will be staged on Wednesday, July 8, starting at 7:15 p.m.

The parade will begin at the carnival and proceed around the entire community. Borough officials will take part in the parade.

Proceeds will be used to purchase new equipment. Marshall Bonner is president.

Goldberg Admits Bias In America

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, in a speech broadcast to Europe, said Wednesday that discrimination does exist in America.

But, he told about 100 persons in old City Hall here, there is a big difference between discrimination here and in Russia.

Goldberg said "in the Soviet Union, religious and nationality discrimination is practiced by the national government and is the product of governmental action.

Is Your Oil Heat Dealer's Independence Shattered?

Has monopolistic utility competition threatened the free trade attitude of local fuel oil dealers?

Absolutely no! The same independent enterprise spirit that has kept America strong since 1776 continues to surge through the ranks of the Oil Heat Industry.

Prices remain low—quality high. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Oil Heat costs dropped 2.3% in the latest 5-year study. The average American home uses 20% less Oil today than 20 years ago. And, 80% more Pennsylvania homes were constructed with Oil heating systems in 1963 than in 1960.

No, your local Oil Heat dealer will not surrender his American enterprise spirit. It is too valuable.

Monroe County's Residents Spent Money On Cars, Food

Special to the Record

NEW YORK — Residents of Monroe County devoted a major part of the money they spent in retail stores in the past year to purchases of food and cars, a tabulation shows.

Such purchases accounted for 45 per cent of all retail business locally.

It compares with 43 per cent so spent elsewhere in the United States and 42 per cent in the Middle Atlantic States.

The figures for the year show that the changing times are producing corresponding shifts in the way people are spending their money. As income rise, a smaller proportion of the available cash is needed for basic living costs, so that more of it may be spent for luxury items.

The facts are brought out in the annual marketing study made by the Standard Rate and Data Service to determine how the consumer, locally and in other parts of the country, is distributing his retail dollar.

In Monroe County, the report shows, food purchases in bakeries, butcher shops, delicatessens and in other local food emporia reached $13,394,000.

This sum, which represented 24 per cent of all retail business locally, was solely for food bought for home consumption. Not included was the amount spent for outside eating and drinking.

The food purchases in Monroe County were at the rate of $1,055 per local family, determined by dividing the total outlay by the number of families.

The automotive market was also a sturdy one, according to the report. Sales of cars, boats, motocycles and related products came to $11,886,000 locally. It was equivalent to 21 per cent of the retail dollar.

The rise in spending during the year made it possible for most retail establishments to top their previous records.

Sales of general merchandise, in department stores and variety shops, amounted to $6,452,000, or 12 per cent of the dollar.

Outlets for wearing apparel, such as shoes, hats and clothing, grossed $2,528,000, equal to 5 per cent.

Stores handling furniture and other home furnishings chalked up $1,434,000, or 3 per cent.

PM Jointure Group To Meet

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain Joint School Committee will meet in a regular session Tuesday, July 8, at 8 p.m. in the junior-senior high school in Swiftwater.

Area Resort Faces Suit For $100,000

SCRANTON — A Springfield, N.J. woman has started a $100,000 Federal Court suit against John and Suzanne Martens, trading as Mount Airy Lodge in Mt. Pocono.

The suit stems from injuries Edith Rynar alleges she received in a sledding accident at the lodge Feb. 5, 1963.

The woman claims she received serious injuries while a guest at the resort when she rented a sled from the sports shop, which went out of control while she was going down a hill.

The suit alleges she was sledding under the direction of Dale Cruzs, social director.

The plaintiff is represented by Atty. Robert E. Sigal of Milford. A jury trial is demanded.

Women Aid Firemen

TANNERSVILLE—Mrs. Charles Besecker of Tannersville poured water on the side of a wooden building and grass fire on her property Wednesday while waiting for Pocono Twp. Volunter fire fighters who were rushing to the scene.

Firemen who extinguished the blaze received the call at 3:14 p.m. and returned to quarters by 3:45 p.m. The half-acre grass fire was on the Besecker property located in the Cherry Lane section of Tannersville.

Three pieces of equipment and 10 men responded to the alram.

Fast-growing eucalyptus seedlings are planted on dunes in the Sahara Desert, then petroleum is sprayed around them to stabilize the sand. The maturing trees anchor the dunes permanently and yield timber, resins and oils.

Cy Barrett Says

Handicapped Helped

By Cyrus Barrett, J.

DEAY CY:

Your readers might be interested in our Summit club. This is a club formed by (and for) physically and mentally handicapped adults and adolescents in Rhode Island, in partnership with non - handicapped peoeple.

The oldest volunter is 74 years old and high school juniors and seniors help. Through the head of the woodworking department of the industrial arts division of our local college, a volunteer system has been set up with students majoring in this work. They bring materials and tools for instructing the handicapped twice a month.

Volunters from the Homemaker clubs in Rhode Island come once a month to teach creative arts and homemaking skills. The manager of an electric contracting firm, for example, brings his tools and materials weekly and teaches club members. He instructs in such things as wiring old bottles which are turned into beautiful lamps. On Achievement day, the handicapped exhibit the things they made alongside things made by other "normal" clubs.

The Summit club's motto is: "Remember, there is always ABILITY in disABILITY." Here is a non-profit program that could work out with some modification in any community needing such a service for adult handicapped people.

VOLUNTEER ADVISOR
DEAR VOLUNTEER

Orchids to your organization! Adversity makes talents serve which would otherwise be wasted. By helping the handicapped, you are giving them the opportunity to harness adversity.

CY

DEAR CY:

Help! Our charity needs a money-maker.

MRS. DYES

DEAR MRS. DYES:

Selling tickets to "walks" through homes and gardens has rapidly been gaining popularity and cash as a fund raiser.

One group of my acquaintance raised more than $1,500 over a Saturday and Sunday in this manner. Almost all was net, as homes and gardens were opened voluntarily. You could also adapt the "walk" idea to model farms and unique businesses. To hypo promotion, consider running notices of your event in the classified columns of your newspaper.

CY

DEAR CY:

The grouch who asked you about the mobile homes didn't mention camping. We do some camping with the children and would like a unit we can sleep in for added comfort. Now, we haul a small trailer which holds our tent and equipment. Since the type of trailer we want would cost about $8,000, we want your advice. Would fancy travel ruin camping for us? What experience have others had?

JEREMY G.

DEAR, JEREMY:

Campers represent the largest single group of travel trailer buyers. A new study made by the Mobile Home Manufacturers association and Trailer Coach asociation emphasizes this point. Sixty percent of new owners buy with camping in mind. As 50 per cent of the buyers this year will be second-time owners, you can be sure luxury makes the outdoors smell sweeter.

Erhard Under Pressure To Tighten Franco Links

By Richard Spong

President Charles de Gaulle of France makes a two-day visit to West Germany beginning Friday (July 3).

The timing of President de Gaulle's visit to West Germany is almost certainly intentional. For the second consecutive year the French chief of state is calling there on the anniversary of America's Declaration of Independence. The timing emphasizes the two-way flirtation between two allies and a former enemy.

West Germany is tied to France by the France-German treaty signed in January 1963. The Paris pact in no real way binds the Federal Republic to the "inward looking" Europe of De Gaulle's vision. Indeed, the German Bundestag combined ratification with a preamble specifying that the treaty could not interfere with Germany's fidelity to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, its other western ties, and the consolidation of Europe. Under French law the treaty was not open to such modification, much as De Gaulle's opposition might have wished to change it.

Now it remains to be seen whether Chancellor Ludwig Erhard can be moved to accept De Gaulle's "Europe of the Fatherlands," regardless of the wishes of Italy and the other members of the European Common Market — and without any thought to the possible entry of Great Britain into the continental agglomeration of the future.

Erhard is said to be under heavy pressure from the right wing of his Christian Democratic Party to tighten West Germany's links with France. This would be along the lines laid down by Chancellor Adenauer. But Erhard, while accepting the possible linkage with De Gaulle as against the impossible — at the moment— integration of Europe politically, is not likely to take any action that would endanger West Germany's ties with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. And within NATO, the extremes in regard to structure and command are represented, awkwardly enough, by West Germany's two suitors, France and the United States.

West Germany furnished almost 50 per cent of NATO's ground forces, but is really only a limited partner in the alliance. Only West Germany and the United States have any real enthusiasm for the mixed-manned naval experiment begun in May. In addition to the seven nations cooperating in the guided missile destroyer test, Belgium has shown a tentative interest. But a change in the Italian government might well mean Italy's withdrawl. Similarly, British participation would be threatened by a Labor victory in the October elections. France stands aloof from the whole idea.

Britain right now is proposing to the NATO mixed - manned planning group in Paris that the concept be expanded to include land-based weapons, especially bombers. This reflects British doubts that a nuclear fleet would be invulnerable. But it also may be a diversionary tactic. Britain has never had much stomach for any kind of German participation in a nuclear foce.

The Daily Express comments thus upon a report that neo-Nazi and nationalist publications have a readership of one million in West Germany: "How foolish are the people who say the Germans should be trusted with nuclear weapons. They are still the most unstable and discontented people in Europe." The strategic planning of NATO continues to be beset not only with the pulls and hauls of today, but also with the traumas of almost a quarter-century.

Just Between Us — —

They say you can get used to anything — and it's true that after the heat wave, yesterday's heat and humidity made more of a ripple than a wave. Just the same, a lot of Glen Brook women golfers took cards as a precaution against heat prostration.

Whipping up a wind as they jockeyed around the course, they were making excuses for their extravagance; since the family didn't feel like eating much in this heat anyway, they could make it up on the food budget.

With the heat and dryness, it seems more like August than July, and apparently the sumac thinks so, too — Anyway there it is blazing away, red as if touched by the first frost, above the purple vetch now in full bloom above the Thru-way.

The highway people have a new sign up on a patch of stuff that hasn't bloomed yet, labeling "Crown Vetch," and it looks as if there might be yellow flowers on that. All of which indicates that I've been making an awful lot of trips up and down from the river, which I have.

Since I'll be spending next week at the fashion shows in New York, there were a lot of stories just in my head which had to be written before I go. Among them, was the story about Fred Hershey decorating for that big Albany social do.

You never know what makes a child decide on a career, but remembering how Fred's mother, Billie, used to dress him when he was just a baby, for prizzewinning appearances in the Halloween Parade, I can see where he might have first had his inspiration for interior decoration as a career, and especially for decorating for a ball.

Speaking of settings, I hope you'll get a chance to see the hour long fashion show over Channel 5 on Monday night at 10, where the setting is that waterfall at the Federal Pavilion, a show I saw being taped last Monday.

POTATOES come to the table in many forms but for that Fourth of July picnic, potato salad is the star of the show.

Three Recipes For Potato Salad

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg — At a picnic a couple of weekends ago, Henri Reaser brought the potato salad. Before we were ready to eat she apologized for it, telling us that when the potatoes were cooking, company arrived and she forgot all about the potatoes. By the time she took them off the stove they were past done so she was serving "Mashed Potato Salad."

However, they weren't quite that done; the salad was delicious, and as I told her, everybody else's potato salad always tastes better to me than my own. I think there are as many ways to fix potato salad as there are recipes for chocolate cakes, and it is one of those dishes that everybody loves, but everyone prepares just a little differently, ing the dressing until the pota-

No matter what recipe you use or whether or not you use a standard recipe, I'm sure you've found that one of the secrets is adding the onion and seasoning to the potatoes while they are warm so that the flavors draw through, and not adding the dressing until th epotatoes are thoroughly cooled.

Because everyone's tastes vary, I'm offering you three different Potato Salads today so that you can take your pick. Make it today for Saturday or Sunday's picnic. The first recipe has the surprise ingredient of bacon.

Bacon Potato Salad

1 quart diced cooked ptatoes
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar
2 teaspoons fresh lemn juice
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1½ teaspoon salt
pepper
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup sliced, stuffed olives
¼ cup diced green peppers
2 strips crisp bacon, crumbled
1-3 cup mayonnaise

Combine the first 7 ingredients. Let stand 2 to 3 hours or overnight. Just before serving, add the next 5 ingredients. Mix lightly and spoon into a salad bowl lined with head lettuce. Garnish with radish roses. Yields 8 servings.

The next salad is made with a cooked dressing which can be stored in the refrigerator. If, leftover dressing gets too thick, thin with a little cream.

Potato Salad

4 medium size potatoes
¾ cup hot cooked salad dressing (recipe below)
1 to 2 tablespoons finely chopped scallions or onions
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
½ cup finely cut celery
¼ cup diced cucumber
2 hard-booked eggs, chopped

Cook potatoes whole in the skins, peel, and dice. Or pare, dice, and cook them in a small amount of boiling salted water until tender. Drain.

Pour hot dressing over hot potatoes. Add scallions or onion and salt and mix carefully. Let cool for 10 to 15 minutes. Mix in the rest of the ingredients. Chill for 3 to 4 hours before serving. Makes about 1 quart.

Cooked Salad Dressing

2 tablespoons flur
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon pwdered dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
dash cayenne
1 cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
1-3 cup vinegar or lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Mix flour, sugar, mustard, salt and cayenne in the top of a double boiler. Gradually sir in the milk. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until the mixture starts to thicken. Cover and cook for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Stir a little of the hot mixture into the egg, and to the rest of the mixture, and cook over boiling water for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add the butter or margarine. Remove from heat and slowly blend in the vinegar or lemon juice. Makes about 1½ cups. Note: If salad dressing is not used when hot, cover and store in refrigerator.

Shredded carrots and diced pimiento give this potato salad a "confetti" look. If you don't have instant minced onion, use chopped fresh onion.

Fiesta Potato Salad

1-3 cup salad oil
⅛ teaspoon instant garlic powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 quart cubed cooked potatoes
1 cup diced celery
½ cup shredded raw carrot
¼ cup diced pimiento
2 tablespoons pickle relish
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
¼ cup mayonnaise

Combine oil, instant garlic powder, salt, sugar, black pepper, instant minced onion and vinegar. Blend with potatoes. Cover and refrigerate 3 to 4 hours or overnight. Just before serving, add celery, carrots, pimiento, pickle relish, eggs and mayonnaise. Mix lightly. Serve on mixed salad greens. Garnish with paprika. Yields 8 to 10 servings.

40 Years After Graduation Class Holds First Reunion

Of those 44, 26 were present for the reunion with their wives or husbands, coming from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Maryland. Shull led in a tribute to the 12 members of the class who have died since graduation.

Dr. Robert Brown, principal of the school, and Mrs. Brown were guests of honor. Dr. Brown spoke briefly. Slides of graduation pictures were shown by Earl E. Heller.

Donald Shook of Maryland won the prize for coming the longest distance; Earl E. Heller for having been married the longest; Evelyn Learn Sandercock for the most children and Lucy Moore Hartman for the most grandchildren.

International Ball Decor Wins Praise For Hershey

East Stroudsburg— The whole city of Albany knows who Fred Hershey is, although he has been working there since his graduation a year ago in June. Full page spreads in both The Knickerbocker News and the Times Union of Albany heralded his accomplishment in providing the decorations for the Spring's biggest social event, the International Center Ball held at the Schine-Ten-Eyck Hotel.

Theme of this year's ball, attended by more than 400 leading citizens, including many from other countries at International House, was International Circus. Hershey, son of Mrs. Gertrude Burlingame Hershey, East Stroudsburg, who majored in interior design at Syracuse University, is working as interior designer with the Martin Business Furniture Co. in Albany.

Mrs. James H. Martin, wife of the vice president of the firm and active in the work of the International Center, asked him to help with the decorations, and his accomplishments were the talk of the town.

The ball room was transformed into a Big top with red and white canopy with red and white valance. Life-sized cardboard aerialists were created by Hershey who also cooperated in painting a 12-foot mural as a background for the band with Inga Kruyssen of the International Center.

Hershey also erected a Midway on the floor below with booths for games, cages and volunteer side-shows, in what the city's newspapers hailed as "one of the best decorating achievements in years."

Class Of '54 Tests SHS Prophecy

Stroudsburg— Members of the class of 1954, Stroudsburg High School, had a chance to see how their class prophecy turned out ten years later at a reunion held Saturday night at Echo Lake Lodge, Echo Lake. Cocktails, dinner and dancing were enjoyed by 55 class members and their husbands and wives.

Karl Weingartner, vice president, served as master of ceremonies. Others at the speakers table were John Minnich, president; Miss Lillian Stark, class advisor; Mrs. Patricia Bartholomew Reed, treasurer; Mrs. Sondra Bolich Danielson, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Martha Yost Trump and Mrs. Mary Grace Pohutsky, co-secretaries.

Awards were presented to Carl and Mary Schneider Hagerty for the most children; William Carson, most bald; Jack Whittle for traveling the longest distance; and Wayne Hughes, most recently married.

A reunion was planned in five years with Richard Astheimer as chairman. The class prophecy was read followed by dancing.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

A woman reader tells me she is desperate this summer because of underarm perspiration, "I have never suffered so offensively, even though I have tried everything," she writes. "What would you suggest?"

I would suggest a visit in person to our Wyckoff Cosmetic department where Mrs. Diamond or Mrs. Ainspac could show her dozens of deodorants and anti-perspirants, any one of which might be an excellent solution to her worries. Sometimes one does not actually need anything "stronger" than one has been using . . . just a change. As a matter of fact, most women switch their intimate toiletries from time to time, and find such a change very effective.

I am also told that most women do not use their deodorants properly. Many will wait until after their morning bath and then apply underarm lotions. Actually, I am advised by a manufacturer, it is preferable to use them at night following the pre-bedtime sponging. This permits them to work during one's most relaxed period. Then, if one is inclined to perspire heavily, another application should follow the morning shower or tubbing. No deodorant should be used directly after shaving the underarms.

Most deodorants and anti-perspirants on the market today are excellent. Five Day Pads are favorites with many women and are liquid. DuBarry, Arden, Rubinstein—all the fine cosmetic companies have splendid roll-ons, and this summer Rubinstein has introduced a new Bioderant which is non-irritating and thoroughly dependable. (At least, I have found it pleasing.) This is less expensive than Mitchum's anti-perspirant which sells at 3.00 a bottle, but there are hundreds of women who swear by Mitchum's and will never use any other.

One article which I read recently, devoted to this same problem of summer freshness, recommended that a woman, who has tried everything else to her complete discouragment, switch to a man's deoperant. My personal advice would be to talk with one's doctor when all else fails. That, I should imagine, would be the safest and wisest plan to follow. After all, much perspiration can be due to nerves, not just to summer temperatures, and a few tranquilizers that he prescribes might prove better than a ton of toiletries.

Let's talk Fashion

Cool, man, that's what we meant to provide for the sweltering passers-by in our bathing suit window—all with tops, you'll notice, but cool just the same—so is the tennis dress with its little bloomers.

And cool in terms of sophisticated simplicity are the clothes in our Country Living window—the country garden print blouses, the little denim number with the rope embroidery, the little calico print shift, and the madras belts and pocketbooks. They're going great guns with the country vacationers, and since we in the Poconos are on a perpetual country vacation, heh, heh, we look pretty cool in them, too.

It really takes a heat wave to break down the last pocket of resistance to shifts, skimmers, or whatever you choose to call them ,and we've had quite a rush on those. Thing is, it's so cool in the shop that our customers forgot they've been baking and start getting interested in the first of our dark-colored cotton skirts for Fall.

Bathing suits or bottle green skirts, we can fix you up for the Fourth of July or September.

5000 Books For Book Fair To Support Scholarships

Stroudsburg — An estimated 5,000 books will go on sale on Monday for the annual Book Fair, sponsored by the American Assn. of University Women, at 762 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The sale will be held from July 6 through July 11. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday, hours will be from 9:30 to 6 p.m. and on Thursday and Friday from 9 to 9.

The books this year have been well classified for poetry, novels, textbooks, children's books, and reference works. Among the special offerings this year will be a full set of the Encyclopedia Brittanica in its 14th edition which is considered one of the best of the older editions. There are also complete sets of George Eliot, Dickens, and many other classics.

Proceeds from the sale are used for local scholastic grants-in-aid for graduates of the local high schools attending four year colleges, as well as for the branch share of the International Study Grant for outstanding women scholars both here and abroad.

This is the first time that the Book Fair, usually held on the porch of the Penn-Stroud Hotel, has been held indoors and is also the first time it has been extended to a full week.

The success of last year's book fair enabled the branch to present four grants-in-aid this year, one to a graduate of each of the county's four high schools.

WONDERFUL PRIVILEGE

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

We are proud of our freedom . . . whether it be freedom of speech, freedom of assembly (the ayes have it), freedom of the press, or freedom of religion. Of all these, we sing: "Let freedom ring!"

Freedom of religion is not the property of the clergy, but of all the people. Every schoolboy knows that the Constitution says so. It guarantees freedom of worship . . . freedom to honor God according to one's own conscience. It is a precious gift.

How you worship is your business! That you must worship, ah, that's God's business! Choose the church to honor God with your fellowman . . . thanking God for this wonderful privilege. For, so often in other lands, such worship is forbidden and outlawed. Sunday is His day! Make it your day!

4 Share Whitemarsh Lead

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP) — Juan (Chi-Chi) Rodriguez, Tony Lema, Tom Shaw, and Al Balding tied with six-under-par 66s Thursday for the first round lead in the $125,000 Whitemarsh Open Golf Tournament.

The four leaders led a charge over Whitemarsh Country Club's 6,807-yard course on a sultry, 90-degree day that saw almost half the field shoot par or better. The birdies and at least half a dozen eagles came thick and fast.

Just a stroke off the pace in the field of 150 came Larry Mowry of Portland, Ore.; Dave Marr of New Rochelle, N.Y., and Californian Tommy Jacobs, each with 67.

Arnold Palmer, helped by an eagle 3 on the 17th, turned in a 68, along with Al Besselink, another late finisher and six others.

Shaw was the first to post the score that commanded this first day of the four-day, 72-hole competition for the first prize of $24,000 and other loot. The Portland, Ore., golfer birdied five of the last six holes in his scorching finish.

Then, along came Rodriguez, 10th leading money winner on the pro trail, with a sizzling 32-34 over the sun baked 36-36-72 layout just outside Philadelphia.

Slap At Integration

King Clay Likens Gotham To Cobra

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cassius Clay, back home after a tour of Africa, said Thursday, "I would feel safer in Mississippi than in New York."

The heavyweight boxing champion slapped at integration with this question: "Do you fear more the rattlesnake, which warns you before it strikes, or the cobra, which sneaks up before springing?"

Clay said injustice is not limited to the South, and that at least the Southerners' stand is known.

"In places like New York, integration is preached but injustice is practiced," he added.

Clay discounted the effectiveness of sit-ins, stand-ins, swim-ins and other methods of civil rights groups.

"We look silly doing this," he said.

The champion also criticized the civil rights bill passed Thursday in the House of Representatives as an inadequate answer to Negroes' problems, and said peace never will be achieved in America using integrationists' methods.

"When you win the right to be employed by a company, then you have to fight discrimination on the job, and when you overcome that, there's something else," he said.

Clay feels the real solution lies in the Black Muslim faith, which teaches complete separation of the races.

Clay disclosed his affiliation with the Muslims after he won the title and, in an interview, referred to himself by his adopted Muslim name, Muhammad Ali.

Explaining that Muslim teachings concern a new nation of American Negroes, Clay said the federal government should repay his people for more than "310 years of labor given while in bondage."

He said four or five states of the 50 should be given to American Negroes for a nation of their own.

"We are taught that this is not asking for a gift, but only for what is due us," he said.

Youth vs. Age In Garden Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Cotton, a slick veteran of 18 years in pro boxing, and Wayne Thornton, an eager 24-year-old body puncher, will bid for a possible title bout with light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano in a Friday night fight at Madison Square Garden.

Pastrano has agreed to meet the winner in September "unless someone comes along who can draw more money."

The battle between the two ranked 175-pounders will be carried on ABC television, starting at 9 p.m. EST.

Pocono Pines Theatre Set For Opener

POCONO PINES — "Sabrina Fair," the first of five major stage plays presented in repertory at the Clubhouse Theater, Pocono Crest, Pocono Pines, Pa., will open Thursday July 2, and will be repeated Saturday, July 4.

Pocono Crest Clubhouse Theater is operated in connection with the Valparaiso University summer program, and the company is comprised of six men and six women, all with previous stage experience. The troupe is directed by Prof. Fred Sitton and co-director Richard Pick, faculty members of the University drama department.

"Sabrina Fair" directed by Richard Pick, is the Cinderella story of a chauffeur's daughter, Sabrina, who can't decide which prince is most charming — especially since two of them are the sons of her father's employer, and the third a rich Frenchman. The upheaval of the influential Larabee family caused by her indecision sets the pace for this spirited comedy.

"Bus Stop" will open in mid-July, followed by "Five Finger Exercise" and "The Imaginary Invalid."

For reservations, phone 646-2131. Curtain time, Thursday, through Sunday, 8:30 p.m.

Area Raises $10,000 For Lafayette

EASTON — George T. Mesch Jr. of Stroudsburg and Frederick Herr of Stanton, N.J., chairmen of the Lafayette College Area Ford Challenge Campaign effort in Monroe Counrty, collected about $10,000 for the fund. Twenty-four men assisted regionally in the drive.

The college has ended its formal effort with more than $461,778 or 160 per cent of the goal announced when the campaign was launched May 7.

A total of 835 gifts and pledges amounting to $461,778 were received by June 30, according to Victor W. Anchkaitis of Easton, general chairman.

He called the amount "the largest ever raised for the college by alumni and friends of Lafayette who live in the Easton area."

The Green Thumb

By George Abraham

YELLOW LEAVES: What causes leaves to turn yellow on various plants. This question comes to me real often, and you can't answer it with a simple statement.

Yellowing is due to many factors. To most gardners it's due to a lack of acid in the soil and they rush to buy acid fertilizers or soil conditioners. A lack of acidity is just one of many causes for yellowed foliage.

Here are some common causes for yellowing which may help you track down your troubles: (1) Poor Drainage. This can be due to clay or hard pan soils, poor soil mixture or wrong type of container.

Anything which prevents water from draining from roots or which checks air circulation in soils will cause yellowing. Roots need oxygen and tight, poorly drained soils shut off this important element.

Control: do anything you can to improve drainage. Use sand and peat in soil mixtures and if you have a cltyey, hardpan type soil, try to drain it with tile. Florists put pieces of pots, charcoal or pebbles in bottom of pots for drainage. This is a good truck for indoor and outdoor plants.

(2) Overwatering. Newly planted items are often "soaked to death." They are given more water than they can take up. Roots stand in water and cannot take up oxygen, yellowing immediately follows. You can tell it you're overwatering. If a soil is constantly soggy, let up. Keep it uniformly moistened.

(3) Lack of Acidity. A pale yellowing around the edges and between the main veins of leaves on rhododendrons, azaleas, and blueberries, and other "acid-loving" plants is called Chlorosis (Klor-oh-sis). This is non-infectious and non-parasitic and is due to an alkaline (non-acid) condition in the soil.

Such plants growing in an alkaline soil cannot take up iron, the iron is present but "locked up" so the plants cannot absorb it. Control: Add equal parts of ferrous sulfate and sulfu at rate of 1 to 3 lbs per inch of diameter of tree or shrub.

Or you can use a new material (sequestrines) which contains either iron, manganese or zinc. These will correct chlorosis when applied to the foliage or to the soil. Next week: More tips on correcting yellowed foliage.

PLASTIC JUG TIP: A reader sends me a good tip for using a plastic jug, the kind household bleach comes in. He writes: "I punch a couple small holes in the screw cap.

Then I add 4 teaspoons of a liquid plant food (23-19-17) to a gallon of water. Screw the cap back on and presto! You have a fine sprayer. Just squeeze the sides of the plastic sprayer and the liquid plant food comes out in a hurry.

Works fine on roses, evergreens, shrubs and every other plant you grow. You can even mix insecticides with the solution and kill two birds with one stone."

Green Thumb note: Friends, I welcome your tips. Please feel free to send them to me so your fellow gardeners can share your suggestions. We all learn through the experience of others, so send me your tips.

RETARDED TREES & SHRUBS: Many gardeners have written to tell us that trees and shrubs planted this spring have not shown signs of life. How long does it take them to start? This depends.

Some items (such as locust and althaea) are slower than others. Nurseries could help eliminate much of this by insisting that gardeners trim the roots and tops of bare-root stock quite severely before planting. This stimulates the dormant stock so it'll send out new growth.

Without this severe trimming many of these nursery items will never come through and must be replaced.

Give your dead-looking transplanted stock the "finger-tail test." If you skin back some bark and fine a nice green color beneath, it'll grow. If it's gray or black, it's dead.

BLUE POTATOES AGAIN: Although I married a potato grower's daughter, neither of us had much knowledge about blue potatoes. We do now! Our desk is packed with letters from readers who used to grow these potatoes (and some still do) 60 years ago. The varities are called by many names: Blue Victor, Blue Christy and Early Blue, to name a few.

They all tell us that quality is high, yeild is good. We also learned there is a pink potato, "the flesh cooks pink, the flavor is great and and how the children love pink mashed potatoes! I also learned there is a black sweet corn, "ideal for drying or eating off the cob!"

Another reader told us of having a "red, white and blue sweet corn as our main crop. This has vanished along with the Blue potato and how we wished we had them back."

We wish to thank kindhearted gardeners who sent us seed potatoes for our gardens. It's interesting to find that so many home owners are raising their own potatoes. Perhaps we should write more about this forgotten basic food crop.

EVERGREENS AGAIN: Most spreading yews (dwarf) are Taxus cuspidate nana, the jawbreaking name you'll find on the tag. It's a dandy spreader, slow growing, very dense, compact and having short nedles.

It's a good shrub to plant in front of taller evergreens, highly recommended where ranch type homes call for a low, spreading plant. You can shear this into a round ball or keep it informal, allowing the shoots to protrude here and there.

If you object to that "sheared" (formal) look, then just nip tips back to keep the plant in bounds.

SUMMER MULCH: If you have access to shredded tree bark, use it for mulching purposes. When it decays it has a rich, dark appearance, makes a fine soil conditioner.

It also helps keep weeds down and conserves moisture. It also makes a good material for growing orchids. As with any organic mulch, it's a good idea to fortify it with a nitrogen plant food.

TOMATO NOTES: Are hybrid tomatoes superior to standard kinds? Is the extra cost worth it? Let's say this: You can grow some fine non-hybrids and have all the fruit you want, plus quality.

However, for a little extra cost you can also buy hybrids that may even be better for the home garden. Hybrids have greater vigor, heavier production and in many cases better quality.

Moreton Hybrid is one of the finest early hybrids we have ever raised. The vines are husky and are loaded with top quality fruit, slightly tart (not too acid). You will have to look far to beat the performance of Moreton Hybrid.

Another popular hybrid is Big Boy, somewhat later than Moreton Hybrid. Producing hybrids is more expensive than the regular types, but most gardeners agree that the results far outweigh the extra cost.

Try growing at least 3 different kinds of tomatoes, because there is no one best kind for the garden. When you find a good one for your area, keep it!

LILAC TROUBLES: I get a lot of letters asking what causes lilac leaves to turn black and die off. There are two diseases responsible for this: (1) Bacterial blight and (2) Phytophthora blight.

Bacterial blight is similar to fire-blight of apples, and seems to be worse on white-flowered varieties. Immature leaves turn black and die quickly. Flowers become limp and the buds may be completely blackened. It is usually a disease of moist, mild weather.

Control: Thin out young shoots to provide good air circulation. Also keep growth covered with Bordeaux mixture. Burn diseased shoots immediately after cutting.

Phythophthora blight has similar symptoms except that the extent of killing is much greater. This fungus often kills shoots to the ground. Leaves are blackened also. Control: Cut out and burn blighted twigs and shoots. Also keep foliage and twigs sprayed with Bordeaux mixture.

Yucca: Also called Adam's Needle, this item is tough, yet stubborn. Some plants 15 or 20 years of age refuse to bloom, in spite of lush growth. Poor drainage, heavy soil, shade are factors responsible for poor blooming. Our yucca blooms every other year and we give it no care.

You can best move the plant in spring, or dig the small plants around the base now. I've divided the old clumps almost any time of the year. They're tough and will grow in any dry, sandy spot.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. R. of White Haven: "Please tell me what caused our tomato plants to wilt. We have both hybrids and non-hybrids growing side by side. Plants started out fine but some have rapidly wilted."

This is a tough question which comes up frequently this time of year. Wilting usually appears on poorly drained soils or in low-lying areas in the garden. If you irrigate and happen to have a soil that's slow to drain (clayey) wilting shows up rapidly.

The reason: vegetable plants need oxygen for a healthy root system. Waterclogged soils mean a lack of oxygen and wilting follows. It seems to be worse with mulched tomatoes, since a mulch prevents surface evaporation.

Leaf curl or "roll" is a non-parasitic disease, widespread in gardens, and it generally follows extended periods of heavy watering on hot days. It's worse on plants in poorly drained soils and also has been observed after close cultivation and extremely close pruning.

Unpruned and unstaked tomato vines do not seem to get it so much. Lower leaves are affected first, and rolling becomes bad enough to cause defoliation.

Suggestion Do NOT cultivate deeply near the plants. Where leaf rool is an annual problem, better stop staking tomatoes.

By the way, blight season is upon us! Spray your tomatoes with zineb, maneb or captan, two tablespoons of any one to a gallon of water. Use every 7 to 10 days.

C. E. of Tafton: "Our shade tre has branches which almost touch the ground. Could we cut these out now? I think it would let sunlight in and help the grass, and it'd make mowing a lot easier."

Yes, summer pruning is advisable. Trees with dense foliage not only darken the house (introduce dampness and mildews) but make grass growing difficult. Cut the lower branches and take out some in the center to let light in.

Cut out any that crisseross each other or which interfere with the house, garage or sidewalk. This promotes vigor of the tree and won't do a bit of harm.

S. W. of Egypt Mills: "We planted myrtle in clumps on our steep bank but it doesn't seem to grow rapidly. What can be done to boost it along?"

Myrtle is not a fast grower. It needs babying along, with water and regular feedings. Liquid plant foods sprayed once a week will encourage the spreading of myrtle, but you should keep weeds handpulled as they interfere when plants are young.

Once it's established, it'll crowd out weeds and make a fine ground cover for steep banks or the shaded spot.

A HAND CULTIVATOR is a garden tool that can be used to solve many problems. Its basic purpose is to cultivate the earth. However, it can be used for unscrambling snagged weeds easily without ruining plant growth as shown here.

Plant Fruit Trees To Bloom In Spring

The masses of beautiful pink and white blooms that adorn the flowering peaches, cherries, plums, crab apples and others are one of spring's most welcomed experiences.

It's a color-show that goes on for days, and it's always a bit sad to see these gorgeous spring flowers pass.

In shopping for these fruiting-flowering beauties, be sure to inquire about the specific flowering and fruiting times for the varieties you're interested in.

By checking this point thoroughly with your local nurseryman, you very likely will find out how you can stretch the flowering — and fruiting — periods of your trees by planting companion trees of different varieties.

Two of today's most popular fruiting-flowering peaches are Saturn and Double Delight. Saturn blooms forth with its deep pink flowers earlier than Double Delight, and bears its fruit somewhat later.

Flowering fruit trees have a tremendous amount of beauty and reward to offer the home gardener, especially when you plant them with a plan to achieve a maximum show of added days of fresh, home-grown fruit each summer.

If you plan to use only part of a can of paint and store the remainder, keep can clean by wrapping aluminum foil around the outside and over the rim. When job is done, foil can be removed and can sealed tight without difficulty or mess.

Utilities Help To Ban Poles

The ugliness and hazards of overhead wires and poles are being admitted by progressive utilities. Some cities now have ordinances requiring that all new installations be underground. Some require that overhead lines gradually be replaced.

In Los Angeles, a committee consisting of electric utility, phone, and home builder and finance representatives are working on the problem. They have disclosed impressive cost-saving improvements in the techniques of undergrounding, bringing the utilities' investments for the improvements down to the point where there is little excuse for overhead wires, according to the American Association of Nurserymen, with the possible exception of sites having especially difficult terrain.

Prevent paint from hardening in grooves between sliding sash and frame of outside window by moving window up and down a few times after paint is pretty dry. Any finger marks left on paint can be touched up later.

It's Time! Clean Up, Check Up

Rose Arranging Is Easy For Everyone

Enjoy your rose garden indoors as well as out. See their glowing beauty light up a colorless corner! Have them in the living room, the kitchen, the den, any room. One rose in a bud vase, several small arrangements of just three roses, or an impressive formal arrangement to stop by for a moment and enjoy will give you a decided lift. With roses blooming in most sections of the country from May to October, what a lot of indoor beauty you have to enjoy!

Kinds of Arrangements

Your choice is practically unlimited with roses. And it's fun to experiment. How about an arrangement with an oriental touch; a severe modernistic type; a formal conversation piece; a folksy country-cottage sort of thing; or a demure bouquet? You can try them all and more. In this regard, other materials can be used very effectively. Magnolia leaves, palm spathes, some of the succulents, begonia leaves, sansevieria, are just a few suggestions. Also, keep your eyes open when on picnics or vacations — an interesting rock, a piece of driftwood, some dried seed pods, a twisted branch — all of these can add variety to your arrangements.

Choosing Containers

Roses will grace any kind of container from a Sevres vase to a bean pot. Take a look through your house, you will find a lot of things in which you can make interesting arrangements. A custard cup anchored with floral clay to a container too shallow to hold water might add variety to your container selection. (The custard cup can be hidden with leaves.) A wine bottle with an interesting shape, a teapot, a vinegar cruet, some colored glass food containers are a few more suggestions. But a variety of sizes and shapes will give more of a scope to your imagination.

Some optional, some musts. You must have either a sharp knife or sharp clippers. Otherwise, dull cutting tools will squeeze shut the little channels that carry water to the blooms and your roses will wilt. Another tool you won't be without once you have used it is a thorn stripper. This little item is inexpensive and makes rose arranging so much easier. Then you will need some pinholders of varying sizes and perhaps a small piece of chicken wire for use in holding flowers in place in certain shaped bowls. Another must is floral clay. This serves to anchor your pinholders in place. It can be used over and over.

How to Cut

You will probably find picking your roses in the early morning is most satisfactory. Take a can of water with you when you go into the garden and put the roses in water immediately upon cutting. Cut on a sharp slant to allow as great an area as possible for water absorption. Also, in choosing your blooms, you will find that stems which curve or are not entirely straight will make the most interesting arrangements.

Easy Steps

Now that your flowers are ready, a few simple rules kept in mind will start you off in fine shape:

1. Most successful arrangements form, roughly, some sort of a triangle.
2. In low containers, height should be about one and a half times the width of the container.
3. Stems should appear to come from a central point.
4. No two prominent flowers should be on quite the same level.
5. In most arrangements (particularly the more "arranged" ones), an uneven number of flowers seems to work out better.
6. The more open flowers and the more bold colors are kept to the base of the arrangement.
7. The rim of the container should be partially concealed by foliage or flowers.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of three articles written by Jonathan Brown, 19, of Danbury, covering his experiences in the City of St. Augustine, Florida, during the recent demonstrations and riots in the confrontation between civil rights group and opposing groups.

By JONATHAN BROWN

A Yale classmate and I arrived in St. Augustine on the morning of June 9. That night we marched through the white section of the town to protest the continuing violence against the civil rights marchers and the injustice of segregation.

By marching in the usual non-violent manner and taking the blows without returning the violence we hoped to stir the conscience of the town and nation — but especially we hoped, by our example, to arouse the conscience of the attackers.

Begin to Form

Early in the evening the non-violent marchers begin to form — two by two. I am scared because I am white and will be a special target of the Klan's violence who look upon us as "white niggers" deserving the worst. I feel guilty for my skin — I know that many of us are going to be hurt by fellow whites.

I realize that the only quality I have in common with white segregationists and Klansmen is the color of our skins.

The procession moves out from the Church where it started and quickly reaches the Old Slave Market, a block park with various enclosures where slaves once were sold.

Led by two Southern Christian Leadership Conference men, Rev. Andrew Young and Rev. Lavert Taylor, we attempt to cross the street into the Slave Market.

A score of white youths ranging in age from 20 to 25 block our way and when we refuse to stop, the two integration leaders are attacked and hit time and again by the whites.

Further back in the line we see this. Young punks beating up ministers while local and county police stand not 10 yards away refusing to interfere.

Pulls Back

The line pulls back and Young and Taylor try to cross at another intersection. Again they are beaten, fall to the ground and are kicked. Young is hit by a blackjack.

This time, however, the area is brightened by the floodlights of newsmen and the young hoodlums get scared and retreat into the enclosure of the slave market.

The line moves around the slave market from which the whites yell taunts and obscenities.

Suddenly, 10 yards in front of me, five white segregationists attack the first white in our line, Rev. Bill England of Boston University.

Kick Him

They pin him between the curb of the street and a car and hit and kick him before his fellow marchers fall on his body, protecting him with their own.

The line moves on, the white hoodlums now stand calmly two yards from the line waiting for the next white, me.

I see them and I know I'm going to get it. The Negro girl with whom I'm walking knows it too and grabs my glasses.

The whites let me pass and then attack from my rear, the first punch hits the back of my neck, then two or three hit me all at once and I am down on the ground trying to "cover up" my vital areas.

Stop Kicking

For 20 or 30 seconds, they kick me, but suddenly stop. They're getting scared themselves by this time for what if the Negroes become violent, and anyway this "white nigger" (me) won't be back again.

I pick myself off the ground and find my trousers and shirt ripped. A local cop is within 10 yards of me. He has been there throughout my beating.

We make our way back to the Church and hear the speakers tell us that "you have to work and suffer for freedom," and you should have pity for those who have to resort to violence to stop us.

Back Marching

The next night we are back marching — for us a non-violent march — for the Klan another chance to beat the "niggers," black and white.

The purpose of these marches and the wade-ins at St. Augustine Beach is to contain the violence of the Klan.

By offering our won bodies as witnesses for Christ Martin Luther King preaches we are actually halting violence.

Acid, Knives

The sight of non-violent demonstrators being brutally attacked with iron pipes, acid, knives, and other weapons should so horrify this nation that eventually so much public pressure should be built up that St. Augustine will have to protect all of its citizens.

In addition, by these demonstrators, the Klan shows itself for what it is. As Rev. C. F. Vivian, Director of Affiliates for SCLC put its, "Our marches have made the Klan show their faces. Now they can be counted and pointed out. The merchants can see them for the kind of little people they are."

The presence of the moderating and organizing influence of SCLC in St. Augustine is the only factor that saves this city from all-out race war.

(S.C.L.C. is the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.)

This organization with Martin Luther King as its leader came into St. Augustine when a race war was a distinct possibility and convinced the people of the Negro community that non-violence was the only moral and practical way to attain equal rights.

Using the Bible, the example of Christ, and the hatred by which the segregationist lives, the leaders, mostly ministers, have convinced the local Negroes that "you should love these segregationists and forgive them even as they are beating you."

The SCLC picked St. Augustine as the starting point in their plans for direct action this summer. It seemed a fairly easy town to crack because of its dependence on tourism.

SCLC thought that if it could show the "real St. Augustine," a segregated town of hatred and violence, economic survival would necessitate giving in to Negroes demands for equality.

Becomes Apparent

But it has become apparent that segregation is so deeply imbedded in the minds of the whites that an easy solution is impossible.

In addition, the Ku Klux Klan has decided to make its stand in St. Augustine, and today over a thousand of them practically rule the town.

To show the extent of Klan control over even the state police sent in by the Governor, last Thursday night four Klansmen under arrest were taken by force from the state patrol cars in which they were riding by fellow Klansmen.

James Hauser, a Negro working at Fairchild Aircraft in St. Augustine was beaten up two months ago by white workers.

He identified three of his attackers immediately but to this time the case is still under investigation and no arrests have been made.

But surrounded by this violence and hatred the Negroes of St. Augustine continue to fight.

They have suffered too long to give up. For centuries they have been in physical, economic and physiological slavery and nothing can be worse than what they have gone through.

As the Negro spiritual goes, "Before I'll be a slave, I'll be buried in my grave, and go home to my lord and be free."

Speaking at the Washington march last summer, Dr. King said, "We cannot turn back. There are those who are asking the devotees of civil rights 'when will you be satisfied.'

"We can never be satisfied as long as the Negro is the victim of the unspeakable horrors of police brutality.

'Heavy With Fatigue'

"We can never be satisfied as long as our bodies, heavy with the fatigue of travel, cannot gain lodging in the motels of the highways and the hotels of the cities.

"We cannot be satisfied as long as the Negro's basic mobility is from a smaller ghetto to a larger one.

"We cannot be satisfied as long as a Negro in Mississippi cannot vote and a Negro in New York believes he has nothing for which to vote.

"No, no, we are not satisfied, and we will not be satisfied until justice rolls down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream."

The Negro of St. Augustine believes in the age-old "American dream" and this is why he does not rebel against his country.

But he has also run out of patience, he wants his share now. In St. Augusitne he is fighting for it.
